FEDS MAY BUY 121,600 VEHICLES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is considering a bill to boost employment in the depressed auto industry by having the federal government buy 121,600 new cars and trucks to replace virtually all of its nationwide fleet. The proposal, characterized by one supporter as a "food stamp program for the automobile manufacturers," would cost $443 million. Its provisions are included in the emergency employment bill which has passed the House and is pending in the Senate.

Instead of replacing its vehicles only after six years or 60,000 miles, the government would replace all but those bought after May 1974. But President Ford feels the measure is uneconomical, says White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen. James T. Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, says the provision is one reason he would recommend the President veto the bill in its current form.

Because not all of the $443 million would be spent in the same fiscal year, administration officials are hard pressed to figure out exactly how much the measure would add to the budget deficit for fiscal 1976, which Ford has said should be limited to $60 billion. Nessen has also complained that the bill would "take away 54,000 sales from new and used car dealers because the government, in effect, would be competing with the new and used car dealers." The number used by Nessen is the number of 2-year-old to 6-year-old cars which would be sold by GSA to make room for the new cars.

But specialists in the used car market don't share the White House concern. "My feeling is it would have little, if any, impact on the used-car market," said Harry Lawrence, the National Automobile Dealers Association official who compiles the authoritative "Blue Book" on used car prices. But complaints remain. Rep. Lawrence Coughlin, R-Pa., noted neither the House Appropriations Committee nor any of its subcommittees held hearings or provided estimates of the measure's impact on employment. "I for one would like to see some hard figures and cost accounting,"

Coughlin said.

Rep. George E. Danielson, D-Calif., defended the proposal by likening it to food stamps. Even industry experts find it impossible to estimate the impact of the proposal on unemployment, although they do expect some favorable impact. Stanley Roe, a statistician for the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association, said the main reason the big purchase would be likely to have a quick impact on employment is because government cars are special orders. That means that instead of simply drawing down their sizeable inventories to fill the orders, manufacturers would have to crank up their assembly lines.

MUSKEGON LANDMARK DYNAMITED: A Muskegon landmark, the 108-year-old Occidental Hotel at the corner of Third street and Clay avenue in the heart of the city, was dynamited out of existence Sunday afternoon. The entire building, blasted by Controlled

Demolition, Inc., for a downtown mall project, was gone in eight seconds. The original building was built in 1867 and a new addition was built in 1929. (AP wirephoto)

'Mama' Turned Out To Be Papa

MIAMI (AP) — "I didn't get to be a woman the normal route, but I'm no fraud," says fugitive Jerry Dean Michael, who escaped detection by posing as a female with five children who call him "mother."

"I think like a woman. I look like a woman, I enjoy flirting with men and dating men. I've had seven proposals of marriage," Michael, 47, said Sunday from Dade County jail.

Michael has been using the alias Elizabeth Carmichael, an automobile entrepreneur known in Los Angeles and Dallas as a husky, 6-foot tall, broad-shouldered "widow."

As the articulate Mrs. Carmichael, Michael promoted what he termed a revolutionary, fuel-efficient three-wheeled car called the "Revette."

Dallas authorities say the car doesn't work and have charged Michael with selling phony car dealerships and with grand theft. Federal authorities say Michael defaulted on a bond in 1962 and must face the counterfeiting charges for which he was out on bail.

He was arrested Saturday after the FBI staked out his rented Miami house on a tip from a local resident who recognized his photograph. Michael was being held today in the Dade County jail, awaiting arraignment. Dallas is seeking extradition but he could be tried on federal charges first.

Michael's identity was unraveled by Dallas police who said fingerprints and other information proved "Mrs. Carmichael" was really a wanted man.

Michael has the voice and mannerisms of a woman and he said he underwent a sexchange operation in Mexico.

But he is the father to his five children. "We all love Liz, we all loved Jerry," said Vivian Barrett Michael, his wife of 17 years. She now lives in the sparsely furnished Miami house with their two boys and three CHILDREN OF VIET BRASS FLOWN TO U.S.

Orphan Airlift Scandal Claimed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Some Vietnamese children airlifted to this country were not orphans but the children of wealthy families or Saigon officials who wanted them flown to safety, several translators have reported.

"There are unquestionably children in the airlift who are true orphans, but I talked to a number of children who said they are not orphans," Jane Barton, translator for the American Friends Service Committee, said over the weekend. She said she spoke last week to four children who claimed they were related to a Vietnamese colonel. Three said they were his children and one his niece, she said.

Muoi McConnell, a Vietnamese nurse's aide who volunteered as a translator, said she talked to one airlifted 5-year-old girl, Le Thi Bach Nuyen, who turned out to be the daughter of the director of Friends for All Children's Saigon orphanage. "They think you want to hear," Powell said. Meanwhile, in Los Angeles confusion by county health officials and persons aboard a plane bringing in another group of Vietnamese children resulted in accusations on both sides that the departure of the sick children from the plane was unnecessarily delayed.

At Ft. Benning, Ga., where 171 Vietnamese children arrived over the weekend, some of the people who arranged for their trip are angry and disappointed.

Betty Tisdale, the Columbus housewife who organized the evacuation of children from a Saigon orphanage, clashed with officials of the Pearl S. Buck Foundation of Perkasie, Pa., over the handling of 18 of the 271 children.

She said their adoptions had been privately arranged beforehand but Frank Davis, an official of the foundation, said before any child could be adopted he or she would have to be positively identified and the prospective parents approved by state adoption officials.

Several Vietnam natives now living at Ft. Benning greeted the youngsters. Mrs. Hoa Newsome was reunited with her nephew who was fathered by an American later killed in Vietnam.

Also at Ft. Benning, three Vietnamese children have ended a three-year separation from their parents, Army Sgt. Don Welch and his Vietnamese wife, Hanh.

Mrs. Welch said that she and her husband had to leave Vietnam quickly in 1972 but there was not enough time to arrange for the children to go. The three children — Steven, 12, Teddy, 6, and Amy, 5 — were left behind with her parents.

Mrs. Welch said Vietnamese officials demanded $715 for the release of each child. "Because you're an American the Vietnamese think you're rich," she said.

The children came in with the flight of orphans arranged by Mrs. Tisdale.

Genius Believes Janitor Job Best

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — John Kirtley, a janitor at the Portland City Hall, says he considers his IQ of 173 just a statistic.

The average IQ is 100 and that of genius is 140 or above.

He has become a member of Mensa, an international organization for exceptionally intelligent people. To qualify for membership, a person must have a genius IQ.

Kirtley says, "The only way you don't get used is by having a job that people consider worthless."

Kirtley, 34, married with four children, took the job in 1971. It pays $4.63 an hour.

"I'm like a child at Christmas time when I go into a library. I'm an intellectual geek," he said, adding he devours books "alive and screaming."

In light of this, how's life behind a broom?

"I love it. It's the field

Pay Hike Spurs Recall Campaign

NILES — A drive to recall John McDonald as Niles township supervisor, is being launched here, according to Mrs. E. J. (Joanna) Flock, a township resident. Key issue is a $2,500 pay raise granted McDonald during the annual township meeting April 5.

"I've received so many phone calls this weekend that I don't think we'll have any trouble in getting the needed signatures," Mrs. Flock said.

She said 876 signatures would be needed on petitions to require the township board to schedule a special recall election.

Mrs. Flock, a prime mover in blocking an earlier pay raise bid for McDonald, said the opponents also object to the loss of John Schoff as police chief. Schoff resigned Jan. 3 because of what he said was "meddling" in police department affairs by McDonald.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Good Intentions But Far Off The Mark

Benton Harbor city hall quite properly should be concerned with reversing the flow of middle and upper income residents from the city. The past decade has demonstrated it's impossible to have a viable socio-economic community with a preponderance of welfare residents.

So city hall must be credited with good intentions for something called a "Planned Unit Development Concept" that would put a 200-unit apartment complex in a budding light industrial area. But the realities of the situation are that the apartments would hurt the city more than help it, probably even add more welfare residents in the long run.

Genesis for the plan appears to have come from Benton Harbor's new superintendent of inspections, Herbert Boston, who arrived here late last year from Chicago. He and several other city officials feel that one and two-bedroom apartments, clustered amid commercial areas and held at fairly high rents—say $195 a month, for example—would attract self-supporting tenants to the city.

Last March 32, the city commission voted to hold a public hearing on rezoning of 12 acres of urban renewal land for $4 million worth of such apartments south of Britain avenue between Ninth and Eighth streets. The hearing will be May 12.

The land for the 200-unit apartment complex is now zoned light industrial and held in a kind of trust by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Announced city plans call for the site to be rezoned to high density residential. The city would then buy it from HUD for $40,000. Final step would be for the city to lease the 12 acres to BNS Developers of Chicago, who might begin construction as early as this May, according to city hall.

No matter how sincerely motivated, the plan appears likely to produce more harm than good.

First, the natural conflict between high-traffic commercial-industrial use and residential use means trouble. Business growth would be hampered; residential quality would suffer.

Dangerous Rise

Dr. L. C. Nehrt is a consultant to the United Nations Development Fund and a specialist in international business. Keeping tabs on the world's population is of special significance to him, and according to his calculations a milestone will be passed sometime in April.

This is the month, by Dr. Nehrt's best figuring, when the world population will pass 4 billion. That is necessarily a rough guess, because many nations simply have no way of knowing how many people they contain. In countries like India and China, alone, projections could be off many millions.

So there is no reason to believe Dr. Nehrt is not as close to the mark as anyone could be. Even so it is a little disquieting to realize that in counting heads in the world the margin of error could be 10 or 20 per cent.

Second, the 12 acres proposed for rezoning is part of the only large tract of vacant land city-controlled and zoned for industrial expansion.

Third, there are decaying residential neighborhoods throughout the city where land could easily—and cheaply—be obtained and cleared for high quality housing development, if city hall really believes that's all it takes to bring back middle income residents.

The 12 acres south of Britain is part of an area that cost the federal government and city millions of dollars to clear so Benton Harbor could build new and bigger tax base. Tax base means commercial and industrial development, not apartments.

Even in cities without Benton Harbor's depreciated residential real estate values, most housing does not produce enough tax revenue to pay for the city services provided. It. Houses and apartments—especially middle and low cost—are heavily subsidized from city and school taxes paid by commerce and industry.

Estimates vary, and exact figures may be hard to pin down, but it's safe to say half or more—as many as 65 per cent—of Benton Harbor residents are on some kind of relief. The unemployment rate is reputed to be somewhere between 25 and 30 per cent.

What Benton Harbor needs is jobs. And apartments won't provide jobs. Stores and factories will.

Why doesn't city hall ask the retail and industrial neighbors of this proposed 200-apartment complex what they think about it?

It's doubtful there's a single such neighbor who would approve. In fact, they'll probably all say no—and with vigor!

Benton Harbor's crime and welfare problems have all but dried up retailing throughout the old inner city and residential neighborhoods. The one promising area at the moment is the site of the old fruit market and the peripheral area cleared by urban renewal. The 12 acres proposed for apartments is part of this.

At the south end, All-Phase Electric Supply Co. has only recently poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into a beautiful headquarters for its multi-state business.

Inter-City Bank has a handsome show place headquarters next door.

Consumers Coal has built a flourishing complex of professional offices in the center of the renewed area, a neatly-tended garden spot.

At the north end of the renewed area, the Riverview drive shopping area appears so far—through sheer merit and sales drive—to have withstood the deterioration that hit retailing elsewhere in the city.

There's a lot of acreage left that could be developed for more stores and light industry. Assets to the city in both jobs and tax revenue. That's what the acreage should be reserved for, not apartments.

Reality requires that a couple of other things be said, too. Hundreds of houses in the city have been torn down or are vacant. Hundreds of other houses and apartments are on the market for sale and bring virtually nothing. Stores and service stations are boarded up by the dozens—with no renters or buyers.

The fact is that the real estate record of the city does not indicate it could, at this time, attract self-supporting tenants in any number. It is more than likely that even if the proposed apartments started out unsubsidized, they'd wind up ultimately full of new welfare clients whose often undisciplined teenagers harass neighboring business.

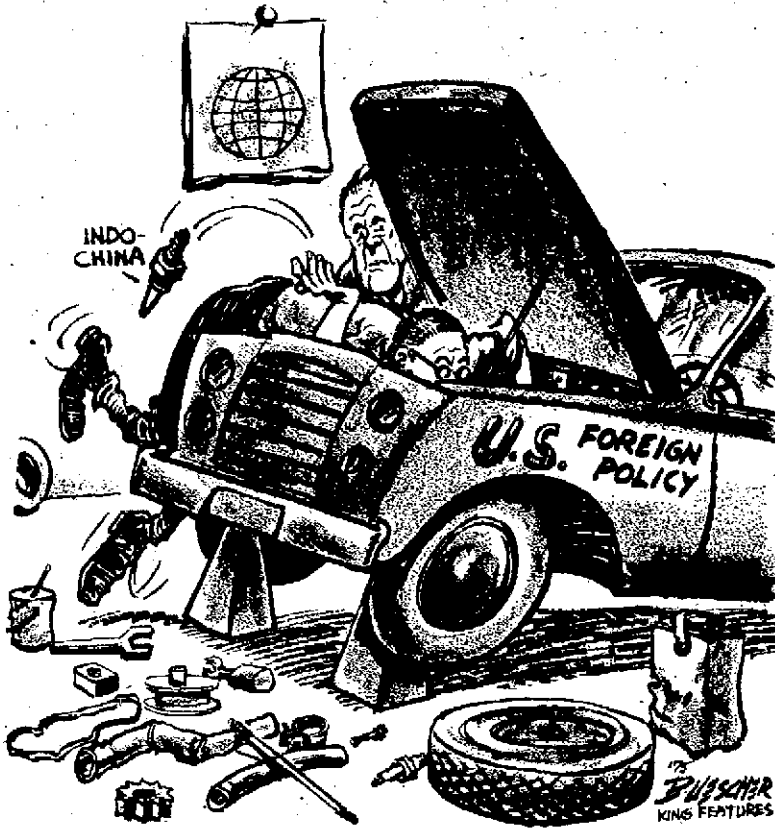

Meanwhile, the Riverview drive—Britain avenue urban renewal area is beginning to show promise of adding jobs and tax base to the city. It should be protected against interference from non-conforming use!

Has city hall so soon forgotten the hue and cry raised only a few years back about being too "hemmed in" for industrial expansion? That's why millions were spent on urban renewal.

Let the city commission determine, by poll what the business people in the affected area want. Then do it! Don't break faith by changing zoning.

It's business that pays the taxes and provides the jobs—not city hall.

WRITES LETTER TO ROCKEFELLER

Editor,
Vice-President
Nelson Rockefeller
The White House

Last week I wrote to President Ford and am writing to you today. I wish to talk to you about Detente.

It is with deep anguish that I have viewed the horrible plight of the South Vietnamese people. In simple thinking about it, it was no natural catastrophe such as a storm, earthquake, or something like that. Then we must conclude that it was man-made.

You know as well as I do that we should have won the war in little Vietnam but our soldiers fought with their hands tied behind their backs. Next Kissinger was sent as a so-called peace messenger. Since we see a visible debacle, am I correct in assuming that this is the case?

We hear so much about Detente these days and much of our food, war material, etc., is being sent daily to the Communist nations with my tax dollar and with all of this deficit spending causing my dollar to shrink daily. I can come up with only one word for the aiding and trading with our Communist enemies and that is T-R-E-A-S-O-N.

Oh yes, I also know that you will probably tell me that Russia is paying cash for the wheat, etc., and to that I'll have to say, "Yes, cash through the import-export bank".

First, let's retire Mr. Kissinger to the unemployed.

Second, let's quit aiding and trading with our Communist enemies right now!

Yours truly,
Mrs. Irma Culbert
R R 2, Watervliet.

THREE ITEMS 'SEEM RELATED'

Editor,
Three items on the April 9

editorial page seem related. Mr. H.R. "Doesn't Want Viet Children Here." He wouldn't even allow America this humanitarian way to save her conscience for the frightful carnage wrought there (remember My Lai).

Further on in the Editor's Mailbag Ms. K. Y. accused the United Nations of fostering the Viet war, stating that our generals are obliged to carry out orders from a Soviet in command of the U.N. Security Council.

What nonsense! We can't blame the frightful situation in Southeast Asia upon anyone other than ourselves. Our refusal to admit and remove ourselves from the greatest mistake we ever made is hard to comprehend.

Congress, at any rate, seems to be facing up to the enormous mistake carried on for so many years.

The inference K.Y. makes that General McArthur was removed from command for any reason other than his bull-headed refusal to obey his Commander-in-Chief, President Harry S. Truman, is also nonsense. We must put the struggle for Peace ahead of the winning of wars.

On the same page, Tom Tiede writes "Vietnam Bleeds; the U. N. Yawns." Yes, rather than being castigated for its participating in this dreadful conflict, the U.N. is condemned for its non-participation. As Tom says — "U.N. members do nothing and U.N. officers say little." How true!!

Reminiscing Over President's Face

WASHINGTON — A decision by the U.S. Postal Service to henceforth prohibit the hanging of presidential photographs in post office lobbies has provoked at least one easily rattled congressman to proclaim it as downgrading of the presidency.

My view is otherwise, seeing the postal order as a step away from banana republicanism, and convinced that after Richard Nixon there is nothing imaginable that could further downgrade the presidency.

Whatever the merits of the small controversy, however, it serves to remind me of a related, and I think, informative incident that occurred in the last decade during the Vietnam war. I don't recall the names involved in the matter but the moral of it remains vivid.

It was early in the conflict. The mid 1960s. The American force was still comparatively small, the few homefront war dissenters were still called peaceniks, the men of the battle were still for the most part resigned to their fate and only rarely considered the larger implications of it.

It was winter. The temperatures in the 80s. The troops called Vietnam "Suntan Strip." It was a time, if I remember right, almost of innocence.

It was also a time of killing, and much of it centered northwest of Saigon in a region occupied by the 173rd Airborne Brigade. These men, originally brought from the Philippines for the three temporary duty, were by now permanently assigned.

Indeed, in these early days, the airborne troops suffered the highest combat and casualty rate in the war zone. One company lost four captains in a year's time, and its overall casualty count in the same period was between 60 and 80 per cent. Few American soldiers have ever fought so much for so long for so little.

Despite my present views on the Vietnam protraction, I have never been so proud of any Americans as I was of most of good men. God help us, I wonder where that innocence has gone.

In retrospect, I suppose the chastity was beginning to fade when one member of the 173rd, call him Private Smith, received a long-requested autographed picture of President Lyndon Johnson, and another member of the unit, call him Private Jones, used the occasion for fun. Smith and Jones were pals, they came from the same town, went to the same school, occupied the same hootch — but where Smith was a conformist, Jones was something else.

Very proud of his LBJ picture, Private Smith hung it in the hootch, only to find after a few days Private Jones had decorated it with horns.

At first Smith merely erased the pencil marks, telling Jones to lay off. But Jones, getting a rise from his establishment friend, repeated the horns. It went on like this for a month — Jones drawing the horns; at night, Smith removing them in the morning.

No doubt the feud would have ended eventually. But before it could, Private Jones was killed on patrol. He stepped on a mine. The sergeant who informed Smith said the young man's face turned red at the news, his eyes filled over and his hands began to shake.

Some time later he went to his hootch, took the LBJ photograph from his bag — then marked it with horns and a moustache. He hung it up thus, in memory of his friend, and there it remained until Private Smith, too, was killed a few months after.

Book Corrects Kennedy Image

WASHINGTON — Finally, this spring, well over a decade since the assassination of President John Kennedy, the romance of the American people with his memory and his family may have spent itself.

Sen. Edward Kennedy was booed last week in Boston; the magic aura which used to insulate him against the basic ethnic and economic tensions of his home state seems no longer to protect him.

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis is a widow again, but there are not many expressions of sympathy and admiration, only envy over how rich she will now be. A lengthy essay proposing Sargent Shriver as a Democratic Presidential candidate appeared and generated no noticeable public response except a yawn. An article in New York magazine claiming Teddy Kennedy is still the Democratic politicians' favorite was greeted by widespread numbers of those worthies with derision and scorn. And the latest Gallup poll didn't even include his name.

Books, however, are often the best mirror of the public mood (except those written by retired generals). The attraction of popular non-fiction in particular depends in part on saying what the people want to hear.

For years, there was a parade of gushy Kennedy books, idealizing the President and his family and specifically extending the myth to younger brother Bobby.

Considering the exciting atmosphere of fresh ideas and fresh faces which Kennedy created and his sudden and tragic death, a certain amount of romantic and emotional nonsense was natural and possibly even a good thing. This column does not pretend to have been immune to the lure of that myth of perfection.

Thus a definite change in attitude is marked with the publication this week of the first respectable account of Kennedy as a human being, warts and all. Titled "Conversations with Kennedy," published by W.W. Norton, the book is written by Washington Post executive editor Benjamin Bradlee and is based upon notes he made after private White House dinners, weekends and telephone conversations with the President.

Bradlee was promptly criticized as betraying his old friend by depicting the President as swearing, selfish, vengeful, gossipy and not always terrifically bright. Such criticism reflects a very narrow point of view.

What Bradlee has really done is to correct Kennedy's storybook image in an era of cynicism toward all politicians, just in time to rescue Kennedy from suspicions that underneath that white knight's helmet he was really as nasty as Nixon or not even flesh-and-blood at all. The old ideal Kennedy was simply too good to be true, and the nation is in no mood to put its Presidents on pedestals any more.

A President Kennedy subject to the same frailties as the rest of us does not suddenly mean a President Kennedy who was not also an exciting leader and inspiring visionary. Bradlee has merely added a missing dimension, a very private and personal view of a complex human of unusual ability.

Quints' Chances Termed 'Good'

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Doctors say chances of survival are good for the quintuplets born Saturday to 30-year-old Mrs. Ruth Winterberger, by cesarean section.

The three girls and two boys were the second quintuplets in Switzerland in less than two years. A German couple in Basel had the same combination in June 1973, but one child died later.

Both the Basel mother and Mrs. Winterberger had received hormone treatment.

Mrs. Winterberger is in a hospital nurse and her husband, Roland, 32, is a cabinet maker.

Robert Starks Elected President Of JA Board

Robert L. Starks of St. Joseph has been elected president of Junior Achievement board to fill the vacancy created when Ray Briggs was transferred to Lansing by Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

Starks, president of Kerley & Starks Funeral Home, Inc., has served on the Junior Achievement board for the past two years. He has two sons, Jim and Tom, who have participated in the J. A. program. Jim Starks was the first to receive the Achiever of the Year (1973)

There are currently 140 students participating in the Twin Cities area program. These students form their own companies, manufacture and sell products of their own design. Helping them are local businessmen who act as advisers. This total project is supported by over 40 area businesses who contribute $18,000 toward its operation each year.

Coloma Scout's Devotion Wins Explorer Post

WASHINGTON D.C. — Eleven years of devotion to the Scouting movement paid off last week when a 19-year-old Coloma man was elected first vice president of the National Explorer Scout cabinet here.

Randy James Beckman, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Beckman, 3010 Wilson road, Coloma, was one of two candidates selected to run for the national Explorer Scout presidency during the fifth national president's congress in the nation's capital.

The chain of events which led to Beckman's being elected first vice president began last Tuesday afternoon when he was one of six regional chairman chosen to compete for the position of Explorer president, following afternoon caucuses.

Tuesday evening, area caucuses and voting was held to determine two presidential finalists. Beckman, representing the east-central region of the nation and Larry Carpenter, representing the nation's southeast area, were selected. After final balloting, and following an enthusiastic campaign, Beckman was elected first vice president and Carpenter, president. Formal announcement of the outcome was made last Wednesday on the south lawn of the White House by President Gerald Ford. Beckman, a 1974 graduate of Coloma high school, is presently attending Lake Michigan college, majoring in social science. By being elected national Explorer Scout first vice president, Beckman wins a $3,000 college scholarship and will spend two weeks in Africa

Michigan Crashes Kill Six

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A 5-year-old girl and three teen-agers were among six people killed on Michigan roads in weekend traffic accidents, State Police report. The youngest victim was Sophie Wilson of Detroit, who was killed about noon Saturday while walking across an intersection in the Motor City.

David Dykema, 18, of Holland, died Friday night near his Ottawa County home when the car in which he was riding ran off a road. Richard Douglas Beltz, 19, of Battle Creek, lost his life early Saturday in Calhoun County when his car left a road and struck a tree.

Jeffrey Todd Beckler, 16, of Saginaw, was killed Saturday evening near his home when his car left a road and collided with a culvert. The other two weekend victims were Ellsworth C. Deputies said Mrs. Jackson was shot at about 3:40 p.m. Sunday during an apparent argument.

A 35-year-old Benton Harbor woman told police she was attacked in her home by a man, who fled after a struggle early Saturday.

Police said the victim sustained two cut fingers and a broken toenail, but was not hos-

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Immunization Urged

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter. It might help millions of children.

Dear Mother — Somewhere today my baby is very sick and it's your fault. He may be totally deaf as a result of his illness, and that's your fault, too.

My son is ten months old, too young to be immunized against measles. But YOUR child who was "just getting a bad cold" was well over that age when they played together at the luncheon.

Why on earth didn't you see to it that your child had the vaccine as soon as he reached his first birthday? Don't tell me you couldn't afford it. Our own Public Health Department charges 50 cents. If you can't pay, they will give the shot free.

I'm glad your child recovered from the measles "just fine." I am happy for you. But my little one is desperately ill. He will live, the doctor told us this morning, but he'll probably suffer from a serious hearing impairment for the rest of his life.

How will I explain to my son that he is handicapped because some thoughtless, irresponsible mother didn't bother to have her child immunized and he caught the illness from him?

I'm not writing to you personally. I am sending my letter to Ann Landers because this problem is bigger than our own two children. It involves all children everywhere. — Heart-sick Mother

Dear Mother: I'm printing your letter because I believe it is an extremely important one.

My consultant for this response is Dr. John Andrews, a pediatrician in Chicago who has taken mighty good care of my three grandchildren.

Dr. Andrews says you are correct — no child should be immunized against measles until he has reached his first birthday. Immediately thereafter, however, he can and should be protected. Usually the one shot also includes immunization against Rubella and mumps as well. This protects the child for life against these three diseases.

Most Public Health Departments (city or county — look in the phone book) will give the shot free if you cannot afford to pay a nominal fee. Of course all practicing pediatricians will give the shots, but it costs considerably more since the vaccine is expensive.

Thank you for writing. I urge every mother who reads this column to immediately immunize every child who has passed his first birthday.

ANN LANDERS

however, a contact sport, and injuries are unavoidable.

A case in point: Recently a visiting team's player was injured at Madison Square Garden. As he was taken off the ice, the New York fans gave him a standing ovation. Does that sound like "bloodthirsty sadism"?

If you want blood, don't go to a hockey game — go to a prize fight where grown men beat each other senseless for millions of dollars. I suggest ten knucks with an ice-cold hockey puck for you, Kiddo. Signed — Irate Ranger Fan

Dear Irate: Thanks for expressing your point of view. But please don't send me to any prize fights. That is the ultimate in legalized mayhem and manslaughter.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers's booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Drummer And Drumee I've told you before about my son who marches to a different drummer.

Well, between the drummer and the drumee, I'm going to goose step my way into an institution.

I have been driven literally crazy by a child who is flakier than acute dandruff. Dumb things. Like playing "Bridge Over Troubled Waters" on the push button phone, adding $34 to the bill. Crawling out of the Grand Canyon and saying, "I have to go back. I left my billfold at the bottom." Leaving his cat to guard his bicycle.

Then one day you say firmly, "From here on in, you learn to live with your own stupidity and your own forgetfulness. Grow up!"

It was 3 a.m. last night when I got the call from him that he had returned from a skiing trip and was in a dark parking lot phone booth on the south side of town alone.

"Where's my car you said you'd leave for me?" he asked.

"In the garage. We couldn't move it when you took the car keys with you."

"Right. So can you come and get me?"

Deep breath. "Absolutely not! Call a cab. You're on your own."

3:05. Suppose that was his last time and there's a car at the curb with a gang of hoods in it armed with chains who won't believe that a kid with all that skiing equipment wouldn't have any money on him and punish him for it.

3:10. Suppose the police see him in a phone booth late at night with a big red S on his shirt for Snow and say, "We've got another Superman loonie on our hands. Walt. Let's run him in." And he spends the night in a cell full of perverts.

3:15. I've got it. The cab driver picks him up but is weird and not really licensed by the cab company but is filling in for the driver he has just done in.

3:30. Wake husband and show him the baby book. "Remember? It seems like just last week when he used to sit up in his little bed and say, 'Mama, more milk.'" "That WAS last week," he snarled. "Go to sleep!"

3:40. The air is fresh tonight. People should spend more time pacing their driveway. "HERE HE COMES!"

"Don't you see?" I explained as he fell into bed. "I had to be cruel to punish you to teach you a lesson. It's time you accepted the responsibility for your own actions. Do you see that?"

As he snored I marvelled at how he could sleep. Those lousy drums he was marching to kept me awake the rest of the night.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your powers of concentration won't be in full focus today. Mental discipline is called for to keep your mind on your work.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Keep close tabs on your possessions. Don't leave anything lying around that a stranger may take a fancy to.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An agreement made with a close friend will be broken when an offer you think more appealing comes up — unless you keep your word.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't accept help you don't absolutely need today. The aid could have strings that would be hard to cut.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Proceed slowly and cautiously on new projects at this time. Get all the facts and figures before taking each step.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you have self-doubts about your ability to handle a tricky situation don't let them become apparent. Others will lose faith in you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You won't get very far if you try to sell another on an idea you only half believe in. Best not to bring it up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Oversights are likely if you conduct your business hastily today. Don't let yourself be rushed beyond your pace.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't attempt to do two things of equal importance or both will suffer. Determine which is the most immediate. Concentrate on it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Save the embarrassment of having to make excuses for something you promised to do for another. Put it at the top of your list.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A firm hand is required in a situation you're responsible for. Those you're dealing with must be aware you're calling the shots.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do what you know to be right.

Don't be overly sensitive as to what another may think. She's only an observer.

Make Furniture Polish

Out of furniture polish? You can make your own.

Take one-third cup of boiled linseed oil (purchase this at the hardware store — do not try to boil ordinary linseed oil, as it isn't the same), one-third cup of turpentine and one-third cup of vinegar.

Mix these ingredients together and shake well. Apply with a soft cloth and wipe completely dry with another soft cloth. This is really quite a good product, and you will be amazed at the results.

Dr. Lester Coleman

I have had a number of gall bladder attacks. During an attack I am in agony. As soon as the attack ends I panic about an operation. Are there other ways of treating this condition?

Mrs. T.L. Ohio

Dear Mrs. L.: Your letter is typical of many that I receive. Fear of surgery is often so great, a condition that might be remedied in a short while is perpetuated until threatening complications occur.

When chronic gall bladder disease, with or without the presence of stones, has been firmly established, surgery is the most effective and rapid way to correct this painful condition.

Your fear of surgery can be eased if you discuss your anxiety with your physician and your surgeon. They will point out that modern surgical techniques and the safety of today's anesthesia reduce the hazards of this operation.

When their advice is taken, and after the procedure is done, you will be relieved of the painful, incapacitating attacks of gall bladder disease.

So many people in the area where I live seem to have been bitten by the stingray fish in our waters. What is the best way to treat this bite?

Mrs. B.D. Fla.

The injury indicated by the sharp, needle-like barbs of the stingray fish is particularly painful. Sometimes, one of the spines may be broken off and left beneath the skin. This can cause delayed healing and the formation of a small ulcer.

It is known that the venom of the stingray can be removed from the body with the application of heat at the site of the sting. People stung by the ray are urged to keep the foot or the hand in hot water for at least 45 minutes.

The water, of course, should not be hot enough to burn or injure the skin.

Swimmers should adhere to the rules set down by local officials. If the stingray is known to be prevalent at certain times it is better to stay out of the water.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers, and, while he cannot undertake to answer each one, he will use questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

OF UNKNOWN origin and existing in almost countless versions, "Yankee Doodle" is generally attributed to a British surgeon named Shuckberg who supposedly wrote it to ridicule provincial troops besieging Boston in 1775. The British played it when they left the surrender field at Saratoga, not in derision but because they had been instructed to play something light. The World Almanac notes.

Black Female Jail Inmate Accused Slayer's Trial Nears

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Defense lawyers for Joanne Little, charged with killing a jail guard she said tried to rape her, begin arguing pretrial motions today.

Attorneys Jerry Paul and Karen Galloway will ask Judge Henry McKinnon in Beaufort County Superior Court to move Miss Little's first degree murder trial away from the county. They have indicated their arguments will be based on the results of an extensive survey of residents' attitudes in Beaufort and surrounding eastern North Carolina counties.

The defense will also seek a delay in the trial, which was once set for Monday, arguing that Miss Little's health is too fragile for her to stand trial. Her doctor stated that she needs rest and treatment for a thyroid condition.

McKinnon, appointed as a special judge to hear the case, said he may order an independent medical examination of Miss Little before ruling on the motion.

Miss Little, a 20-year-old black, is charged with the ice pick slaying of Clarence Alligood, a 62-year-old white jailer. Alligood was found nude from the waist down in Miss Little's cell.

Miss Little, who was awaiting appeal of a breaking and entering conviction, fled the jail in the early morning of last Aug. 27. She turned herself into state authorities in Raleigh eight days later.

More than 1,000 eastern North Carolinians were interviewed in the defense poll as attorneys sought to determine where Miss Little would be most likely to get a fair trial.

Defense attorneys argue that racist feelings and pretrial publicity make it impossible for Miss Little to get a fair trial in Beaufort County. They say everyone in the area has already decided whether she is guilty or innocent and they want the trial moved to Wake County Superior Court in Raleigh.

Go Slow, Save Mistakes

DETROIT (AP) — If you're one of millions who always end up going right down to the wire with your income tax returns, the Internal Revenue Service has some strange advice: Slow down. IRS officials warn that last-minute filers tend to make mistakes. The deadline for filing your federal income tax is Tuesday. Forms must be in the mail by midnight on Tuesday.

April 15. Taxpayers who also must file a state of Michigan return also must have their forms in the mail by midnight on Tuesday, while Detroit's filing city income tax returns have until April 30. The IRS says late filers may have to pay up to five per cent per month in delinquency penalties.

SENATOR AND ASSISTANT: Bass Murphy reads to her husband, State Sen. John Murphy, on the floor of the Nebraska Legislature in Lincoln, Neb. Murphy, 56, of South Sioux City, is gradually going blind because of diabetes. (AP Wirephoto)

Nebraskan Knows Blindness Coming

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — State Sen. John Murphy lives with the knowledge that he will one day be totally blind. Nevertheless he is among the most active men in Nebraska's single-house legislature, using a brusque Irish humor and his wife's eyes to face his day-to-day challenge with failing eyesight.

"And there are a lot worse things in this life to face than what I'm stuck with, so don't be making this a hearts and flowers case," he told a reporter. Murphy's blindness is being brought on by diabetes.

"It just takes a bit more planning, that's all," said the South Sioux City legislator. He is no longer able to read the hundreds of bills brought before the legislature, and the Banking, Insurance and Commerce Committee, of which he is chairman.

"When we have new legislation my wife Bess reads it into a tape recorder, and I play it back as often as I need to," Murphy said.

His wife sits next to him on the floor of the legislature each day, reading to him as bills are amended.

"He has one of the quickest minds in the legislature," said Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich. "Lord knows there isn't any sympathy factor involved where Murphy is concerned, he doesn't need any."

Murphy says he is conservative. Legislators in Nebraska are elected on a nonpartisan basis without party listing.

He is against big government, especially when he feels government is involving itself too much in private business.

"This country was built on a system that lets those that work for their own betterment get ahead," Murphy said. "Government can't make everyone who is poor rich, it can't make everyone who is blind sighted."

Murphy has been successful in business ventures. He doesn't deny that at 56, he could retire and take it easy.

"If I went home and sat in a closet I'd feel sorry for myself," Murphy said. "And besides, Bess would never let me get away with it."

Besides that, this is one of the most interesting things I've ever done, this legislative business," Murphy said. "There's nothing I'd rather be doing; this has been a fine, fine education."

Public Outcry Sought

THREE RIVERS, Mich. (AP) — The leader of Alabama Gov. George Wallace's presidential campaign bid in the state says he is counting on public outcry to save the Michigan Presidential Primary.

Arthur Cullers says he feels efforts to eliminate the primary will fail. The primary, first held in 1972, is criticized as nothing more than an expensive popularity contest because its results are not binding on delegates to national party conventions.

Cullers, a Battle Creek Democrat, is chairman of the Wallace Action Movement, which is seeking support for the Alabama governor as if he already had announced his candidacy for President in 1976.

Wallace has not yet announced his decision on running.

Cullers says Wallace supporters are concerned that efforts to eliminate the Michigan Presidential primary are really veiled attempts to block Wallace's expected presidential bid.

State Democratic Chairman Morely Winograd has acknowledged the party might try to eliminate the Presidential primary if it fails in efforts to make it a so-called closed primary, which would not allow Republicans to cross party lines to influence the Democratic primary.

Those who would do away with the primary say it cost the state $3 million in 1972, when Wallace was a surprising winner among Democrats.

CHECKING OUT THE GEAR: Jim Whittaker and his wife Diane check out equipment Sunday in Berkeley, Calif., that they will use on their attempted climb of 28,721 foot K2 mountain on the Pakistan-China border. VOTE CANVASSERS BALK Who's Ann Arbor Mayor?

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The Ann Arbor Board of Canvassers was scheduled to meet again today to decide whether to certify results of the city's controversial mayoral election held a week ago.

City Clerk Jerome Weiss said late Sunday night that the two Republicans on the four-member bipartisan board refused to certify the results at a meeting Sunday night.

The controversy centers around a unique preferential balloting system used last Monday.

Weiss said Sunday Democrat Albert Wheeler unofficially held the lead by 121 votes. Weiss said the votes had been counted "45 times" and the first count differed only four votes from the last count.

The tally under the newly adopted preferential voting system showed Wheeler with 14,684 and incumbent Republican James E. Stephenson with 14,563.

Theodore Beals, one of two Democrats on the canvassers board, said counting problems came up over the weekend in the write-in ballots. But he said the outcome of the election would not change.

The most recent tabulations—six days after the election—included both the preferential votes for each candidate, along with the second-choice ballots of Human Rights party voters.

Wheeler's victory will not be official until at least three members of the Board of Canvassers signs a certification document. Wheeler said he was "outraged, angered and bewildered" by the board's failure to certify the election.

"Somebody has been making a real political game to keep me from being sworn in," Wheeler said, adding he believes Republicans are playing games with the voters.

One of the Republicans on the board, Mrs. Wendell Forsythe, had no comment on her refusal to certify. The other GOP board member, Don Kenney, was unavailable for comment.

Wheeler and five city council winners are scheduled to be sworn in at the City Council meeting tonight. However, with the results of the election still not certified, those ceremonies are undecided.

Republican officials have announced their intent to file a suit against the preferential voting system for mayor.

INVENTOR DIES LINCOLN, Mass. (AP) — Herman H. Scott, 68, inventor and founder of H.H. Scott Inc. of Maynard died Sunday. Shortly after his graduation in 1931 from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology he invented a circuit that sweeps a beam across a screen, one of the inventions that made television possible.

TRAINING Trainees Put Under 'Stress'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service trained undercover agents by plying them with liquor and testing them with women to see if they could keep from revealing their identities, an IRS spokesman has confirmed.

The "stress seminars" were discontinued in 1965 after one of the undercover agents was arrested for drunkenness, the spokesman said Sunday night.

"He apparently became separated from the group and was arrested," the spokesman said.

The agents were being trained in undercover work to infiltrate organized crime, he said.

"As the school was run in 1965, they attempted to ply the students with liquor to see whether they could retain their cover under the influence of liquor," the spokesman related. "The exercise consisted of then trying to see whether women could get the agents to reveal their cover."

EGYPTIAN CABINET RESIGNS

Beirut Gun Battles Kill 32

Palestinian guerrillas and Lebanese rightists battled today for the second straight day in Beirut with sporadic machine-gun and bazooka bursts. At least 32 persons were reported killed.

Elsewhere in the Middle East, the Egyptian cabinet resigned and President Anwar Sadat prepared to form a new government to tackle domestic problems that have sparked two riots this year.

The fighting in Beirut began Sunday during the inauguration of a new Maronite Christian church which was attended by Pierre Gemayel, the leader of the right-wing Phalangist party, and many members of his party militia. They claimed they were fired on by Palestinian guerrillas.

Palestinian leaders charged the Phalangists with ambushing a busload of 22 Palestinian civilians driving past the church on their way to a refugee camp.

Clashes spread to downtown Beirut and four suburbs. The Palestine Liberation Organization accused the Phalangists of a "well studied and prepared plan of ambushes, criminal attacks and roadblocks."

By late Sunday night the Phalangists reported three militiamen killed while the Palestinians listed 26 dead and 19 wounded. Two Lebanese civilians were added to the death toll after they were caught in a crossfire at a roadblock.

At dawn Monday, the Palestinians reported one more guerrilla killed and three wounded in clashes during the night. A Palestinian spokesman also said four members of a Lebanese folk dance troupe were wounded when Phalangists opened fire on their cars.

The fighting underscored the Christian-Muslim tension which has come to Lebanon as a result of the presence in the country of some 12,000 Palestinian guerrillas.

Premier Rashid Solh held an emergency cabinet meeting Sunday night, and some ministers suggested that the army intervene. Solh refused to declare a state of emergency and ordered the police to restore law and order, but the only police action reported during the night was the armored car hit by a bazooka.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt appealed for a "cessation of bloodshed" in Lebanon, and President Hafez Assad of Syria was reported in close contact with the Palestinian leadership.

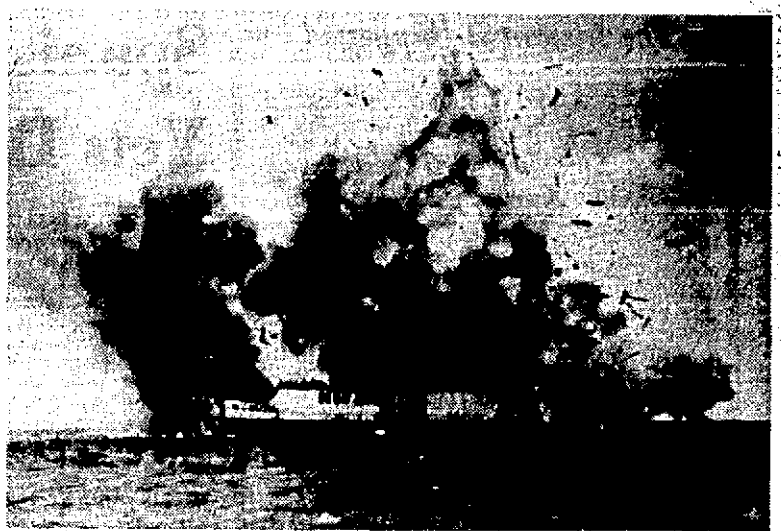

PLO leader Yasir Arafat sent telegrams to Arab leaders urging them to "stop this plot aimed at ruining the Palestinian-Lebanese fraternity."

The Egyptian cabinet, headed by Premier Abdel Aziz Hegazy, submitted its resignation on the eve of a nationwide speech by Sadat in which he was expected to outline policies on inflation, housing and food shortages, and transportation problems.

Official sources said the new cabinet would be named Wednesday and sworn in Thursday. It is expected to be headed by a close friend of Sadat, Mamdouh Salem, deputy premier and interior minister in the outgoing cabinet.

Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy and War Minister Lt. Gen. Abdel Ghany Gurnay were expected to retain their posts, indicating no major changes in foreign and military policy.

Sources predicted that Sadat's new economy minister will be Sherif Lutfi, an economist who criticized Hegazy's policies as stopgap measures.

Fahmy said in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News and World Report that unless progress is made in Middle East peace negotiations, war will eventually follow and "nobody can guarantee that it won't involve the whole world."

"We are ready to live with Israel if she is willing to live with us," he said.

"This means she must give up her ambition to dominate the Arab countries, whether by expansion or other means. We may sign a peace treaty with Israel provided — and this is a big proviso — that Israel is ready to live in peace with its neighbors as a Middle Eastern country, not a European country or an additional state of the U.S.A."

Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon told newsmen in Jerusalem before flying to London and Washington that the United States is pressuring Israel to reach a settlement with Egypt over the occupied Sinai Desert. He declared that the Jewish state would resist compromises that endanger its security.

ANOTHER EXCURSION
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Glomar Explorer, which reportedly recovered part of a sunken Soviet submarine under a CIA contract last year, plans another excursion into the Pacific later this month, according to a spokesman for the operators of the vessel.

According to the Palestinian news agency, all of the 22 passengers, including women and children, were killed or wounded in the clash Sunday. Colon Lawman's Case To Jurors

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Six members of a federal court jury were due to begin deliberations today in a $1 million lawsuit stemming from the 1970 slaying of a Cline physician by Colon's police chief.

But before jurors could begin, attorneys scheduled closing arguments after four days of testimony and U.S. District Court Judge Wendell Miles was to instruct jurors on the law applying to the civil suit.

Deliberations were delayed until today after Wendell decided to spend most of Friday planning his instructions to jurors.

The suit was filed after police chief William Steinberger shot and killed Dr. Richard Hill, 36, at the home of Hill's mother nearly five years ago. Steinberger said he acted in self defense after Hill hit him with a hammer.

The osteopath's widow, Jane, filed suit claiming negligence by the chief and charged the village of Colon with allegedly hiring an improperly trained officer and failing to supervise him.

Steinberger countersued for $300,000 on grounds he was sued without proper cause.

The shooting occurred after Steinberger responded to a report of a domestic disturbance at the home of Virginia Hill. Jane Hill had been living with her mother-in-law about two months when the slaying occurred on May 15, 1970.

Immediately after the shooting, the widow described her husband as "extremely violent" and said she hid from him behind a locked bedroom door.

Two Colon councilmen, Oswald Decker and Bruce McKerscher, testified Friday there were never any complaints of the chief using excessive force before or after the shooting.

St. Joseph County authorities investigated the shooting and concluded Steinberger acted properly. But coverage of that ruling by the news media brought a request for a mistrial from Mrs. Hill's attorney.

Miles overruled the mistrial motion but asked jurors not to read about the case until after reaching their verdict.

Church Creed

Unchanged: No Blacks Allowed

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Black students in a University of Alabama religion class tried to attend a white Baptist church revival but learned that one of the church's creeds hasn't changed.

"We're not an integrated church," said Thurman Galtman, a deacon of the Alberta Baptist Church. The black students were refused entrance at the door Sunday and were moved off the church's property by Tuscaloosa police.

The Rev. Dorsey Blake, the instructor of the class entitled "The Black Religious Experience," said that the class has made field trips to several black churches on recent Sundays. He said it decided to attend a white church after seeing an advertisement inviting "the public" to attend the revival.

The Instant It Happened

A PLACE CALLED DUNKIRK

In 1938, Austria fell to ultimatum. Czechoslovakia to threat and the promise of peace. In 1939, Poland fell to blitzkrieg in less than four weeks, a demonstration of what lay behind Adolf Hitler's ultimatums, threats and promises. Britain and France declared war on Germany.

On April 9, 1940, Denmark was taken in its sleep, and Norway was invaded with ruse and lightning power. On May 10, 1940, the Nazis invaded the Low Countries. Hours later Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who had believed Hitler, yielded the British government to Winston Churchill, who had not. Luxembourg fell in a day; Holland in six. On May 12, the Germans crossed the French frontier and four days later broke the line at Sedan.

Churchill, in his first speech as prime minister, told the Commons, "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat. We have before us an ordeal of the most grievous kind. But I take up my task with buoyancy and hope. I feel sure that our cause will not be suffered to fail among men."

With more than 200,000 troops on the continent, the British faced a disintegrating Europe. On May 14, the British Broadcasting corporation announced calmly, "The Admiralty has made an order requesting all owners of self-propelled pleasure craft between 30 and 100 feet in length to send all particulars to the Admiralty within 14 days of today."

Leaving small rear guard units, the Allies fell back on the port of Dunkirk. The Germans pressed them relentlessly, on the ground, in the air, smashing the town, destroying the docks and water supply.

The Allied pocket is now a beach. Death or capture seem inevitable. But from England comes a miracle.

Ferry boats, fishing boats, cabin cruisers, slow sailboats under power, paddle wheelers, fire boats, tugs and lifeboats, merchantmen, minesweepers, destroyers and speedboats — 887 vessels in all, and some of them barely deserving of the name. They are crewed by a staggering variety of sailors, from regular Navy to taxi drivers. Sea Scouts, longshoremen, butchers, Sunday sailors. They capsize, they collide, they go awash, but still they come.

The beaches are alive with men struggling into shoulder deep water to reach the rescue fleet. The British Navy lays down a stifling barrage to protect the rear, and anti-aircraft shells fill the sky.

It went on for nine days, from May 26 to June 3. In the end, 13 British and French destroyers were lost along with 27 other boats. But 338,226 soldiers were rescued from the jaws of the juggernaut. The Germans captured no more than 40,000.

Spanish War Vets Dwindle

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The day is rapidly approaching when the ranks of America's oldest veterans, those who fought in the Spanish-American war, will dwindle to fewer than 1,000. But many are still surprisingly spry.

The Veterans Administration counted 1,096 Spanish-American war vets alive last month. That compares with 1,595 alive last July and 1,804 alive in July of 1973. There were 392,000 Americans who participated in the turn-of-the-century hostilities.

The oldest is believed to be 105-year-old Nelson Norton of Whitestown, Ind., whose 95-year-old brother, Everett, of Palestine, Ill., makes them the only known Spanish-American war brothers alive. Nelson lives with his 70-year-old daughter.

The youngest veterans of that war are probably 87 with the average around 95. There are 36 who are 100 years or older.

More than half require somebody to help them get around, but that's how the VA discovered many are still going strong.

All Spanish-American war veterans are entitled to VA pensions, and the agency set out last year to see if some who also might be entitled to a special aid-and-attendance allowance were not getting it.

Although many get that special allowance, the VA counselors found a 90-year-old vet skinning legs for two new cabins he was building at his hunting camp. He suggested he was in better shape than his visitors and got no argument on that score.

A 95-year-old brushed off VA officials, saying he is able to manage on his income, although he was worried about the state of the economy.

A 98-year-old, informed that his situation warranted an increase in his monthly stipend, turned to his wife of 58 years and said: "I'll take you dancing tonight" with the money.

The VA found one 90-year-old still working. He operates an elevator.

Another, age 98, had just returned from 18 holes of golf. He explained it helped restore his strength after a series of heart attacks and he mentioned that he is still "dating."

VA counselors shared lunch with a 93-year-old veteran who had given up his heating business only four years earlier. After lunch, he crushed an empty beer can in his hand.

All the states have Spanish-American war veterans, with California having the most by far, with 180.

Alaska, Delaware, Vermont and New Mexico each has only one Spanish-American war veteran still alive, according to VA records. Florida, with 80, has the second highest total behind California.

The VA says there are 24,381 widows of Spanish-American war veterans and 1,381 children receiving pensions. This compares with 29,783 widows and 1,464 children on June 30, 1973. The children draw pensions beyond the normal cutoff date at age 18 because of physical or mental inability to care for themselves.

The last Civil War veteran died in the 1950s but there are still 265 widows and 128 children on VA pension rolls. The last Indian war veteran died in 1973 but there are 73 widows and 15 children on VA rolls.

UNIQUE SCULPTURE: "Victoria Grenadier," a bronze sculpture creation by Jay Yager, professor of fine arts at Eastern Michigan university, catches interest of Southwestern Michigan college students Pam Froehlich (center) and Paula Riley, both of Dowagiac, as Dr. William Spencer, SMC vice president of instruction points out features. Gays Quit City For Quiet Farms

By ROSEANNE KERVASTI
Associated Press Writer

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Some of America's homosexuals are forsaking the anonymity of the big cities for the tranquility of the farm lands.

They say that among their new farm and small town neighbors they are enjoying a peace and acceptance of themselves as human beings that they never knew in the bustle of cosmopolitan living.

"They judge us by our gardens. We talk about our horses, the weather, the crops," said Alan Kern.

Kern, 30, teaches psychology at Mankato State College in southern Minnesota, where he also runs a small farm with another man.

He was one of approximately 400 people attending the Midwest Gay Pride Conference at the University of Iowa in the heart of the nation's farm belt this past weekend.

"In the cities, ... you find reinforcement of your lifestyle in numbers," he said. "As oppressed people, we felt we needed that reinforcement. But as we come to accept ourselves for what we are, we ask why we should have to retreat and hide," Kern said.

"I like the country. I don't like the hassles of city life. The farmer may not like our gay lifestyle, but he chooses to ignore it. If I'm trying to farm and ask his advice — how to mend a fence, how to raise goats or plant a crop — he responds. He accepts me for my abilities as a person and for what I'm trying to accomplish," Kern added.

"Gay people are finding they don't have to go to New York or Chicago or wherever to survive," said Fred Brungard, 28, a conference organizer and television station production assistant who lives in a rural area outside of Iowa City.

"You still have to maintain a great deal of discretion in small towns. But if we don't force our homosexuality on people, they don't hassle us about it, and for the most part we're just like everybody else. We're accepted as human beings," Brungard said.

"We just don't have that much interaction with the community. We're generally not involved in the church or the schools, so the only time we see them is when we are mending fences. And the only time I've ever gotten into trouble is when I tried to bring up politics," said Kern.

"There's been a lot of prejudice by gays against rural people," said Kern. "But I've learned that in many cases, the farmers are a lot friendlier than city folk."

"Gays in the cities have had a low self-esteem. A lot of them are rejecting the masculine traits society wants them to live by. So, they're afraid of the self-sufficiency that country living demands," he said.

"I've watched the civil rights movement, and now I see more blacks in positions of authority and stature," said a 26-year-old Kansas woman, who declined use of her name. "Now there's the women's movement and we're beginning to see more women in government. As the public becomes educated, as we demystify gay people, we will come to see them accepted."

Fall Of Cambodian Capital Appears To Be 'Imminent'

By EDWIN Q. WHITE
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Rebel forces punched into the western and northwestern edges of Phnom Penh today, burning refugee huts and sending terrified civilians streaming into the Cambodian capital, field reports said. The fall of the city appeared imminent.

In South Vietnam, the Saigon command said its forces inflicted damaging blows on North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces at Xuan Loc, 40 miles northeast of the capital, and on other fighting fronts.

In Washington, Senate and House Democratic leaders urged "expeditious" committee consideration of administration requests for more aid to South Vietnam.

Associated Press dispatches from Phnom Penh said thousands of refugees clogged the streets of the Cambodian capital, many crying for food.

The dispatches said black clouds from the refugees' burning huts rose over Phnom Penh, and that military police used rifle bullets to control the mobs pouring into the city from the suburbs.

A Cambodian air force T28 fighter-bomber dropped two bombs on the military command headquarters in Phnom Penh, killing seven persons but no command personnel, a Cambodian government broadcast said. It called the pilot a "criminal" trying to destroy the Cambodian people and armed forces.

One of Cambodia's most important Buddhist leaders, Patriarch Huot Tat, urged in a radio broadcast that "all superpowers involved in the Cambodian conflict use all their influence to help end the suffering of the Khmer people," and called on the United Nations to help bring peace.

The refugees said the rebels were overrunning the airport four miles west of the city. Fleeing government soldiers said Khmer Rouge troops were pouring into the city, mingling with the refugees.

Heavy fighting was reported within a mile of the road between the airport and the city. Insurgent troops were also pressing on government forces holding a thin line on the east bank of the Mekong River across from Phnom Penh.

"We will never surrender," Premier Long Boret declared. But it was obvious that his forces could do nothing to stem the insurgents' advance.

On the South Vietnamese political front, Premier Nguyen Ba Can announced formation of a "government of union" that he claimed would have the cooperation of the leaders of the opposition to President Nguyen Van Thieu. But the major posts went to familiar supporters of Thieu, and political observers predicted the shakeup would not dampen the demands for Thieu's replacement.

Thieu called for the U.S. Congress to approve President Ford's request for more emergency aid for South Vietnam. He said Ford's request shows "we shall be helped to the utmost if we are determined to fight Communist aggression."

All indications in Washington pointed to a rejection of Ford's aid request but speedy approval of his request for authority to use American troops to evacuate U.S. citizens from Saigon if necessary. Several lawmakers were urging that the United States begin the evacuation before the use of troops becomes necessary.

Spokesmen for the South Vietnamese military command reported only sporadic fighting today around Xuan Loc, the provincial capital 40 miles east of Saigon that has been the site of heavy action for nearly a week. The spokesmen claimed air strikes in the region killed another 120 North Vietnamese. Heavy casualties among government forces also have been reported.

NY Jewish Rally Denounces Soviets

NEW YORK (AP) — An estimated 100,000 persons gathered near the United Nations to hear dozens of politicians and others express support for Israel and denounce alleged mistreatment of Jews in the Soviet Union.

The ecumenical crowd of various religions, races and politics came from all over the Northeast to chant, march and listen to speeches in what was billed as Solidarity Sunday for Soviet Jewry.

Jewish Defense League leader Meir Kahane had predicted a record number of arrests during the rally. More than 600 uniformed policemen were on hand as the demonstrators paraded down Manhattan's Fifth Avenue and east across 47th Street to Dag Hammarskjöld Plaza, about a block from the U.N.

Democratic Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Henry M. Jackson of Washington pledged their support for Israel as did Republican Sen. William E. Brock III of Tennessee.

"The United States can deal with the Soviet Union only from a position of strength and principle," Brock said. "There is no need to knuckle under on the Jackson amendment or any other matter."

The amendment, named for the Washington senator, denies

"most favored nation" trading status to Russia unless there is an easing of emigration restrictions for Jews in that country. Russia says the amendment is attempted interference in their internal affairs.

About 250 members and supporters of the JDL, some of them wearing olive-drab military uniforms, tried to march to the U.S. Mission to the United Nations on First Avenue but were prevented by police.

Thwarted, they staged a sitdown demonstration at Second Avenue and 45th Street. Police arrested 134 persons an hour later when they refused to leave. They were charged with disorderly conduct.

GIVEAWAY: Part of the hundreds of Indianapolis, Ind., area residents who received free chickens haul away their clucking, wing-flapping and sometimes egg-laying booty. Chicken farmer David W. Rust gave away 2,000 live White Leghorns because they were more expensive to feed than their eggs were bringing on the market. Nearly 1,000 took part in the giveaway. (AP Wirephoto)

Surprise! Here's A Ticket...

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Big Brother may be watching motorists as they speed down Michigan highways, and the result could be a ticket from a cop you never knew was watching.

The Michigan State Police say they are considering implementing a speed enforcement gadget to clock speeds, take a picture of cars and the front seat occupants — and then send a speeding citation by mail.

Officials say the device will work at night as well as the daytime.

And the radar units, complete with infrared photographic equipment, will be mobile so they can be moved from mounting to mounting along Michigan's freeways.

The State Police say they also can use a "dummy" device so you won't know if the unit you see on the side of the road is working or just a front.

TO FORCE a declaration of principles from those who were indifferent or were secret enemies of the Revolution, state legislatures enacted "test" laws. The oath demanded by these laws generally prescribed loyalty to the patriot cause, disloyalty to the British government and a promise not to aid and abet the enemy. The World Almanac reports.

SAVED FROM SCRAP HEAP Locomotive Thrills Rail Buffs

DENVER (AP) — The last steam locomotive made for the Union Pacific Railroad, once relegated to melting snow, now graces the tracks between Denver and Laramie, Wyo., as an excursion train for rail buffs.

On one recent trip, blizzard-like conditions prevailed as 400 enthusiasts from throughout the United States jammed aboard 12 cars trailing behind Union Pacific 8444. Many were garbed in railroaders' denims and were armed with bundles of cameras and tape recorders. The old baggage car is a snack bar now, and the doors are left open so the hardy can experience the sights and sounds of steam locomotion.

This particular trip ended abruptly, when the boiler's superheater broke down, forcing the passengers to make the rest of the journey by diesel. That's also the basic history of steam locomotion, which flourished in the 1930s but was made obsolete by the modern diesel. UP 8444 was delivered in 1944, saved from scrap in 1960 and pressed into service melting snow. It was finally rehabilitated for excursions.

BIG WHEELS: Some of the 400 railroading enthusiasts making an excursion run examine the engine and tank car of Union Pacific 8444 at Denver Colo. Saved from scrap in 1960, 8444 was finally refurbished to pull excursion trains. (AP Wirephoto)

The 'Blue Collar Blues' Plays More Softly Now

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer
LORDSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — The young militants don't sing the "Blue Collar Blues" so loud at General Motors' sprawling plant these days.

The blues — complaints of boredom on the assembly lines, the need for change, the foremen who mistreat workers — have been muted by mortgages, car payments, grocery bills, families and a few years.

"A boring job is better than no job at all," said Sam DiPietro, one of 2,800 workers laid off at the plant that makes all of GM's Vegas and many Chevrolet and GM vans. Some 1,800 were due back today.

When the most automated auto plant in the world opened here in 1966, the workers' average age was in the early 20s. It was still in the 20s during the big strike in March 1972. Now the average age is over 30.

"They have other things on their minds now: car payments, mortgages and families they have to support," said Marlin "Whitey" Ford, 33-year-old president of United Auto Workers Local 1112.

Three years ago last month Local 1112 struck the Lordstown plant set on rolling farm land on the edge of the Cleveland - Akron - Youngstown industrial complex.

The union blamed grievance and contract language for the walkout. Workers voiced another reason: assembly line work was demeaning.

Psychologists called it the also feels the blue collar blues were overrated, that the 1972 dispute was "just a plain labor dispute."

"We've never said the work isn't monotonous," he said. "All jobs have a certain amount of monotony. Mine does and I'm sure yours does."

dividual rights," he said.

Rocco DiCintio Jr., 25, added: "I fell down and hurt my knee and the foreman made me work an hour until my shift was done."

"As far as I'm concerned it's not the automation, it's the contract," said Lewis Cickelli, 22, a Lordstown worker since 1970. "Management just won't live up to it. We have to be militant."

Ford hit the same theme earlier, complaining GM wanted recalled workers to come on their own time to pick up their badges and get job assignments. "That clearly is a contract violation," he said.

Not all worker aggression is aimed at the company. Many workers complain of apathy in the union and contend Ford and other officers ran for union positions "because it's the best job in the plant."

"There's just no way you can please everybody," said Ford. He added that while complaints against management may not be as loud, the basic causes of the Lordstown strikes remain.

"They still don't have that underlying feeling that you've got to be nice to people," he said of management. "They just don't think that way."

"For a lot of our members it's their first full-time job. They are either just out of high school or the service. When you push them they push back."

'A Boring Job Is Better Than No Job At All'

"blue collar blues."

Softly in the background in these recession times the blues wait on. "There are some nights I can't wait to get out of there," said James W. Forsyth, 29, a laid-off assembly line worker. "It's the same thing over and over and over."

Ford, the union president, said: "Of course, automation was an issue. It always is. But, the underlying thing was you had a different management that came in trying to run roughshod over people. The people fought back."

In October 1971, GM REPLACED Chevrolet Division and Fisher Body management at the plant with General Assembly Division executives.

The division eliminated some jobs and combined others. The line was speeded up. Workers rebelled. Many of the 100 Vegas produced each hour had to go to the repair yard for broken key locks, slashed electrical cables and for parts that weren't installed.

The union walked out first in March 1972 for three weeks. In fall 1974, union workers struck again and stayed off the job seven weeks.

Bitterness from that struggle remains. Forsyth said some Lordstown workers are "so down on GM they won't even buy one of their cars."

"I'm sorry about that," he said. "GM feeds me and I'm going to help them. I drive one of their cars."

But, DiPietro, at 41, a representative of the older union faction, thought the crippled economy and the $240-a-week contract minimum wage had mellowed some of the more militant workers.

Management spokesman John E. Brincko thinks, too, that tensions have eased since 1972. He Forsyth complains management still does not care about the workers.

"There's not a great relationship between foremen and the workers like you would have in a small plant," he said. "When they come around and give you your check they ask you for your number, not your name. It's demeaning, disheartening."

But Nick Schecodnic, a 30-year-old welder, finds management attitudes improved since 1972. Schecodnic said he has noticed less arrogance since the plant held training sessions for foremen.

"I think they realized if they go in there with the old iron fist, the guys will stick together and, if they do, they would cause a lot of trouble," he said.

Workers once talked about assembly line reforms. The traditional line with its simple repetitive tasks would be replaced by a team working under its own supervision that would assemble a complete car.

"You don't hear much of that now," Schecodnic said, "but it's still in the back of their minds."

Brincko said: "That type of work could get as monotonous as the assembly line. It is used in Sweden, and I think you'll find the workers there have the same complaints."

Not every worker gets bored on the line. "I happen to like the job," said DiPietro, calling the assembly line "a challenge."

P.T. Barnum Memorabilia Razed By Fire

MEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — A three-alarm fire burned through P.T. Barnum Hall at Tufts University today, destroying Barnum circus memorabilia including the preserved remains of Jumbo the elephant.

There were no injuries reported immediately.

The 91-year-old building, built with funds provided by Barnum, contained the P.T. Barnum Circus Museum. Jumbo the elephant, was the museum's most famous exhibit.

Barnum purchased the giant African elephant from the London Zoo for $10,000 and brought the animal to the United States in 1883.

The mounted elephant was placed on display in 1888, shortly after Jumbo was hit by a train and killed.

ON THE LINE: Four nuts are hard to screw on an air filter one at a time, so Troy Edwards uses power tool that attaches four at once. He works on assembly line at GM plant near Youngstown, Ohio. (AP Wirephoto)

PRODUCER TELLS JOPLIN STORY

Brief Meeting Changes His Mind

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five years ago, a Canadian film maker named F. R. "Budge" Crawley had a brief encounter with Janis Joplin, who was roaring through Canada on a railroad tour with a troupe of rock artists.

Although his son is a guitarist, Budge Crawley's only concept of rock was "electric guitars and loud." He knows better now.

He has spent three years producing "Janis," a film biography of the ill-starred singer he met briefly before she walked onto a Toronto stage.

It all started because of a collection of undeveloped 16mm film resting in a frozen food locker.

"A cameraman had shot film of the Festival Express Train Tour in 1970 that had included Joplin as well as a number of rock groups," Crawley recounted.

"He had filmed almost all the performances, but very little on the train itself.

"That was unfortunate, because the train could have produced some very colorful footage. For instance, the Royal Mounted Police rode on the train, and at every stop the Mounties prevented the local police from coming on board.

"That was prudent, because the cars were blue with marijuana smoke, of course.

"The cameraman had financial difficulties and never even developed the film. I paid off the debts and looked at the film. The Joplin footage was the only good part, and there was only 25 minutes of it that was usable. Then I started looking around the world for enough film to make a feature."

Crawley talked with the singer's parents, the Seth Joplins of Port Arthur, Tex., and they allowed him to go ahead, subject to their final approval of the film. The producer's search took him to London, Paris, Munich, Copenhagen and Stockholm, where Miss Joplin had appeared.

Happily, a German film crew had made a 50-minute documentary of her tour, and half of it was usable.

Other sources included the movie "Monterey Pop," interviews on the Dick Cavett Show, outtakes from the "Woodstock" movie, an interview on KQED, the San Francisco public television station.

"There were 10 sources of footage in all, and I ended up with 70 pounds of legal agreements," said Crawley. "Getting clearances from the musicians was an enormous job. Also from the still photographers — we have a montage of stills at the end of the picture."

Then came the most important clearance of all — Miss Joplin's parents. Since they retained ownership of her compositions, they held veto-power over the project.

"I screened the picture in their living room," Crawley recalled. "Mr. Joplin was broken up by seeing Janis. Her passing is still a very emotional thing to the family.

"But they approved of the film. In fact, Mrs. Joplin even insisted that Janis's language remain as it is. There are seven instances of a four-letter word in the picture, and it happens to be the four-letter word that receives an automatic R rating. "Universal requested that we bleep out the word so that children could attend 'Janis' without parents. But Mrs. Joplin said no — 'That's the way Janis was, and that's the way she should be seen.'"

After three years of being close to the Joplin legend, Crawley has formed his own opinion of her: "She was an enigmatic woman. I think she could have been a great actress; she had that panache that makes stars.

"She was amazingly frank in interviews; she was one of the first personalities who would 'tell it like it is.' Yet she was kind, even when interviewers asked her the most inane questions. She never put anyone down.

"I found her to be very honest, very outspoken, very refreshing. She was extremely temperate and wanted to give everything onstage and do everything onstage. I am convinced her death was accidental. She was too full of life to kill herself."

Joplin died in Los Angeles Oct. 4, 1970, from what the coroner termed an accidental overdose of heroin.

ROCK STAR'S LIFE: The late Janis Joplin, queen of rock and blues in the 1960s, appears like this in "Janis," a posthumous motion picture about her controversial life-style and music. Film is a collection of motion pictures and stills made during her life. (AP Wirephoto)

Nutrition Instructor Course To Be Offered

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Andrews university home economics department will offer 35 hours of training this summer for people interested in conducting nutrition and cooking classes in the church or community.

The training, a home nutrition instructor's workshop, is scheduled for June 9 to 13. The cost of the course will be $25, according to a university spokesman.

Among those conducting the workshop will be five registered dietitians, a physician, a nurse and a public health specialist.

Another workshop, current issues in home economics, will also begin on June 9 and will continue to June 17. This workshop is designed to train professional dietitians to conduct workshops.

The cost is $82 for two quarter credits, and $10 for the workshop fee.

More information on both workshops may be obtained by calling the Andrews home economics department.

Hospital Equipment Lies Idle

"In 1972, over 30 percent of the 777 hospitals equipped to do open-heart surgery didn't perform one operation! . . . This means that $30 to $40 million worth of facilities went unused that year.

A few months ago, Family Weekly ran a feature on the high cost of hospitalization. We were inundated with responses from our readers. Many were grateful. Some were critical. This week, medical reporter John Kelly reinvestigates the problem on the basis of your queries and criticisms. Some of what he finds is shocking. But there is, he notes, cause for optimism. You won't want to miss this important article on a subject vital to you and your family.

Read it Saturday in Family Weekly, a regular feature of The Herald-Palladium.

Italian Kidnap Victim Released

ROME (AP) — Gianni Bulgari, an international jeweler and Italy's "golden bachelor," has been released, a month after he was kidnapped in the heart of Rome.

The size of the ransom paid for the 40-year-old jet setter could not be learned immediately. But Bulgari was the best-known catch of Italy's booming kidnap industry since J. Paul Getty III was ransomed in 1973 for $2.7 million.

Second Petition Is Filed

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — A second petition seeking to relieve Mayor Orville Hubbard of his job has been filed with the city clerk, and its sponsor says he'll try to recall four councilmen unless they inform the ailing mayor of the action.

Hubbard, who has suffered two strokes since November, is partially paralyzed and while no longer hospitalized, remains in seclusion.

He has not appeared at his desk since the first attack.

Douglas Thomas, who has filed both petitions, said city officials are hampering efforts to remove Hubbard, but Councilman John Grecu dismissed the recall threats.

"I don't know what he's talking about," he said of Thomas. Grecu said the council would give Hubbard "all the time he wants" to recover.

The first petition was turned away because city officials said it contained legal defects. City Attorney William Hultgren said he would "guarantee" no action would be taken on the latest petition until late next week.

Military Seizes Power In Chad; President Slain

NGARTA TOMBALBAYE
Killed in coup

CHAD: Map locates the north central African republic of Chad and its capital, Ndjameña, formerly Fort Lamy. (AP Wirephoto)

NDJAMENA, Chad (AP) — The leaders of Chad's army have seized power after overthrowing President Ngarta Tombalbaye. Official sources said the president, who had survived seven previous coup attempts, was killed in a brief but bloody attack on his palace. The sources said a number of persons were killed or wounded Sunday when troops and national police attacked the presidential palace with mortars and artillery shortly after dawn. Some firing was also reported from a military camp in the center of the city, which was named Ft. Lamy when Chad was a French colony. Chad is a poverty-stricken republic in north central Africa. The palace guard resisted for about four hours, the sources reported. After the firing subsided, jubilant troops drove through the streets shouting: "We've won! Tombalbaye is dead!" Gen. Noel Odingar, acting commander of the armed forces, ordered a dusk-to-dawn curfew on the country and appealed for calm. He said: "Our forces have taken their responsibility before God and the nation. The new military rulers ordered leaders of Chad's only political party, the Movement for Cultural and Social Revolution, to meet at the city's race course along with members of the Supreme Court and legislators present in the capital and promised they would be safe. Several thousand French troops are stationed in Chad, but there was no word of any action by them. About 3,000 French civilians living in Ndjameña were reported safe. The coup makes Chad the 19th African country under military rule. One of the new regime's first actions was to release three high-ranking officers Tombalbaye accused of plotting against him. They included Gen. Felix Malloum, former armed forces commander who had been held since June 1973. The president accused him of a plot to overthrow the government and eliminate Tombalbaye by witchcraft. Tombalbaye, 56, was a former schoolteacher and union leader who entered politics in 1946, served as president of the National Assembly, premier and defense minister under the French, and became president in 1960 when the drought-stricken country of desert and jungle got its independence from France. He was elected in 1962 and re-elected without opposition for another seven-year term in 1968. He ruthlessly suppressed political opponents but was never able to gain complete control of a country torn by religious and tribal frictions and economic inequalities. With French army support, he had been fighting a Moslem rebel group known as Frolinat in the northeast of the country since 1968. The rebels kidnapped a number of French and West German hostages more than a year ago and some are still in captivity.

Car Makers 'Manipulations' Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican congressman says auto industry and labor leaders may have "engaged in 'economic manipulations' to save the industry money at the expense of the nation's economic health. Rep. Edwin D. Eshleman, R-Pa., charged the auto companies worked employees overtime to build up car supplies and then laid them off to regain control of inventories, saving millions of dollars in wages. Over the weekend he asked a House committee to investigate whether the alleged manipulations helped worsen the national economic picture. He said his staff calculates that "three-quarters of a billion dollars was paid to auto workers in overtime in the first 10 months of 1974. That was just prior to when huge inventories were used to justify massive layoffs within the industry." An average 215,000 of the 670,000 auto industry workers have been out of a job each week since November 1974, said Eshleman, and during that time "the industry saved itself $700 million in regular pay." Though some of that money was paid in Supplemental Unemployment (SUB) Benefits, he added, "they saved perhaps as much as $350 million while regaining control over their inventories." The benefits, used to help provide workers with up to 95 per cent of their wages while laid off, were negotiated by the United Auto Workers in 1953. Chrysler Corp.'s SUB fund ran out of money Friday. General Motors' benefits will expire at the end of this month.

Eshleman wrote Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, requesting an investigation of auto industry practices. He said the auto industry is "in large part responsible for the recessionary psychology now affecting the nation. Their actions appear to have resulted in a purposeful overproduction of automobiles which brought about excessive inventories and then caused a chain reaction of unemployment and reduced income. "The problem was created largely because the auto industry, aided and abetted by union complacency, used overtime pay to build government inventories and then adjusted that situation with layoffs which may not have been necessary had the overtime not been overdone in the first 10 months of 1974," he wrote.

MOVING OUT: A South Vietnamese on a motorcycle with two children and household possessions, aboard, rides past a parked government tank en route from Xuan Loc, Vietnam, Saturday, as heavy fighting continued in the area. (AP Wirephoto)

American 'Assurances' To South Viets Revealed

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnam's foreign minister at the time of the 1973 Paris peace agreement says President Nguyen Van Thieu's government agreed to sign the agreement by after Henry A. Kissinger promised that any North Vietnamese attack would be met with an American attack.

Lam, who is now president of the South Vietnamese Senate, said in an interview that Washington never clarified what Nixon meant by his pledge to "react immediately and vigorously" to any large-scale North Vietnamese offensive. But he added that no secret agreement was signed between the two governments.

The Ford administration has admitted a commitment was made to South Vietnam but denied any secret agreement. It says any commitment to military action was canceled by the congressional ban on such action later in 1973.

Lam, who is now president of the South Vietnamese Senate, said in an interview that Washington never clarified what Nixon meant by his pledge to "react immediately and vigorously" to any large-scale North Vietnamese offensive. But he said Kissinger, then Nixon's national security adviser and the negotiator of the Paris agreement, promised military action.

Lam said Thieu sent him to Paris in January 1973 to get the answer to two questions:

"I wanted to be sure North Vietnam would not attack us again. Kissinger replied the U.S. would not let this happen and, if so, the Americans would attack. He also assured us top level diplomacy would be used to deal with Russia and China to limit military supplies of an offensive nature to North Vietnam."

Some Hope Evacuation Is 'On'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two senators say they hope the evacuation of Americans from South Vietnam is already quietly under way.

The lawmakers, Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., also said President Ford would need congressional authorization before using American troops to evacuate South Vietnamese from the embattled country.

Their statements Sunday coincide with some skepticism in Congress about recommitting U.S. troops to South Vietnam.

Congress this week takes up Ford's requests for $722 million in additional military aid to South Vietnam and $250 million in humanitarian aid, plus authorization to use U.S. troops to evacuate the more than 5,000 Americans in South Vietnam and thousands of South Vietnamese who would be endangered if the Communist-led insurgents took over the whole country.

Ford asked for congressional action by the end of this week.

Jackson, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said on ABC's "Issues and Answers" that "my judgment is that Americans are moving out right now (from South Vietnam) and they ought to move quietly without any fanfare."

JAVITS, APPEARING ON CBS' "Face the Nation," said he hoped the evacuation would have begun by now.

Their views echoed weekend statements by Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield who urged Ford to begin the evacuation without delay.

Mansfield also indicated his wariness about authorizing the President to send troops to assist in the evacuation. He referred to "the lesson of the Tonkin Gulf resolution," which Congress passed in 1964 to empower President Lyndon B. Johnson to use troops in Indochina.

When the U.S. involvement in Vietnam later became the topic of a bitter national debate, defenders of U.S. actions often cited the Tonkin Gulf resolution as evidence of congressional approval of the war.

Jackson and Javits, who said there was legal basis for the use of troops to evacuate Americans from South Vietnam, asserted such basis was lacking to justify using troops to remove endangered Vietnamese.

Both senators also said

Congress would give the President a carefully defined authorization to use troops in such a situation.

However, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, was less confident. Speaking on NBC's "Meet the Press," Muskie said of the use of troops to evacuate Vietnamese: "The prospect that it would involve a massive use of American troops and a consequent recommitment in the war, I think, makes that a pretty dim prospect."

Inventories Dip; Production May Perk Up Now

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by a big decline in the backlog of automobiles, inventories of the nation's businesses fell by a record $1.5 billion in February, the Commerce Department reported today.

The development was good news for government economists, who have said a large-scale decrease in inventories, especially autos, is essential for recovery from the nation's current recession.

A decline in inventories means people are buying goods faster than they are being produced. As inventories continue declining, manufacturers eventually will need to begin producing again to rebuild inventories. That means more jobs on production lines.

Virtually all of the February decline in inventories occurred in automobiles, which were down $1.6 billion, the largest monthly decline on record.

Figures on auto inventories showed the sale rebate plans of auto manufacturers, in force during all of the month, apparently were successful in reducing the auto backlog.

The over-all decline in inventories of $1.5 billion was also the largest on record, exceeding the previously high monthly inventory liquidation of $9.10 billion in December of 1969.

Last month, the Commerce

Department had reported that inventories in January also had declined, but it revised those figures today to show that they actually increased by $5 million.

Total business inventories — including stocks for both manufacturing and trade — totaled $270.3 billion in February, down from $271.8 billion in January. The figures are adjusted for seasonal variations.

Inventories of retail businesses declined by $1.1 billion and inventories of wholesale businesses fell $569 million. There was an increase of $185 million in the inventories of manufacturers.

While inventories were falling in February, business sales rose by five-tenths of one per cent, including 1.9 per cent at the retail level. There were four straight months of increases in retail sales, from November through February, until a small decline in March.

The Commerce Department said total auto inventories in February were nearly $16.3 billion, down from slightly more than $17.8 billion in January.

The department said retailers' inventories of nondurable goods — such as food and clothing — increased $296 million in February to a total $40.1 billion.

Inventories of durable goods — such as autos and appliances — decreased $1.4 billion to a total $32.8 billion.

traffic island. The victim, Harold S. Navy Jr., 17, of Rockville, was wounded in the abdomen.

Walking further up the road, the gunman shot and killed Connie L. Stanley, 52, of nearby Washington, D.C., who was sitting in his car at a traffic light. The gunman walked behind Stanley's car and fired into another auto, wounding Rosalyn Stanley, 26, of Annapolis, Md.

At that point, two policemen spotted the gunman and ordered him to halt. He turned and looked at them, but went on to another car and fired, authorities said. He wounded Bryant Lamont Williams, 20, of Rockville, in the abdomen.

The two officers opened fire with a shotgun and a pistol and killed him. A car believed to belong to the gunman was found in the shopping center, police said.

Dying Man Wants To Stay Home

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — Doctors say death could come anytime to Joseph MacWade and his family wants him to spend his last days in the familiar atmosphere of his home rather than the sterile ward of a hospital.

"I have a very strong value that people should be allowed to die at home. I think that there's nothing more beautiful than to die in a familiar atmosphere with those you love around you," said his daughter, Sister Patricia MacWade.

MacWade, a 73-year-old former construction worker, has been confined to a bed ever since he broke his hip. Doctors said the fracture was a result of cancer moving into his bones.

"He knows he's dying and it gives us a chance to share these precious moments with him," she said. "When people know they're going to die they have a real strong need to talk about it, to say their goodbyes to the ones they love."

Three Hurt In Crash On I-94

Three people were injured early Sunday when a motorist apparently fell asleep and a car went off I-94, rolled over several times and struck a culvert, according to the state police post at Benton Harbor.

Listed in "critical" condition at Benton Harbor Mercy hospital was Kenneth Wayne Jackson, 21, Battle Creek, identified as a passenger.

Reported in "good" condition at the same hospital were Vicki Renee Benavidez, 22, Battle Creek, identified as the driver; and Bobby Martin, 19, Chicago.

The accident occurred about 6:35 a.m., off eastbound I-94, near Niles road, Royalton township. Troopers said the driver reported she apparently fell asleep. She received a summons for careless driving. There were no other witnesses to the accident.

"The children call her Mother Liz and me just plain mother," she said. "We share common interests in the children and treat each other like sisters. She is my friend and I can tell her anything. She makes sure we have a roof over our heads and food."

"This is not an affection," he said. "My earliest memories are acting like a girl."

He admits he fooled people into believing he was a "total woman" but I've never made false promises about my car. I believe 100 per cent that my car works."

Dallas police say that he used high-pressure sales tactics as president of the now-defunct 20th Century Motor Car Corp., which moved from Los Angeles to Dallas in January.

He's accused of defrauding investors of $10,000 by claiming his Revette had the speed of other cars but would travel 70 miles per gallon.

Union 'Politically Independent'

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — William Marshall, president of the state AFL-CIO, says from now on his union is going to be politically independent. In a weekend television appearance, Marshall said he does not intend to back the Democratic party, as is traditional, until it gets better leadership. Marshall said the union will work to elect its friends and defeat its enemies. Marshall also said the union wants legislation to control teacher strikes, saying such laws would be "in the interest of the public" rather than pro-labor or pro-management.

Vandals Damage 2 Schools

ST. CLAIR SHORES, Mich. (AP) — Two boys did at least $5,000 damage to two schools here Saturday, school officials say, although police estimate the damage could run to twice that amount. Police said they responded to an alarm at the adjoining junior high and elementary schools and found one boy inside, and he informed on the other youth. The two, aged 12 and 15, were to appear today in Macomb County's Probate Court juvenile section. Police said the boys spilled paint and sodapop, emptied fire extinguishers and damaged hand instruments and lights. Police theorized the boys gained entry by stealing a set of keys.

Nursing Home Attorney

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A special state Senate committee probing the nursing home industry has been told a Lansing area attorney earns $150,000 a year acting as a state-appointed guardian for 1,500 persons. A spokesman for the Ombudsman Nursing Home Project — a federally funded group that acts in a liaison role between nursing homes and the government — says at least part of the $150,000 is in state funds. The spokesman, Charles Waller, says attorney in question was assigned as guardian for the 1,500 persons by the State Department of Social Services through Probate Court proceedings. Waller declined to identify the attorney.

Catholics Getting Inquiries

DETROIT (AP) — Catholic school officials in Detroit say concern over cross-city busing plans apparently is prompting an unusually high number of inquiries about admission policies and tuition costs. The Archdiocese of Detroit prohibits using its schools as a way to avoid desegregation. School officials warn parents will find classrooms closed to them if they try to enroll their children in parochial schools to escape the prospect of court-ordered busing in Detroit this fall. The same goes for parochial schools in the suburbs, because both city and suburban Catholic schools alike come under the Archdiocese of Detroit.

A few days after the experiment, Hampshire continued, he was told informally by an American officer that there had been prisoners on the island from American jails who had volunteered for the experiment in hopes of reducing their life sentences.

Lawmakers Tackle Malpractice Insurance

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A week devoted to the medical malpractice insurance problem is on tap in the Michigan Legislature, if only in committee work. House leaders, responding to Gov. William Milliken's call for urgent action, last week pledged themselves to a "concerted, coordinated effort" to report out as many malpractice bills as possible. Neither chamber has major legislation on other issues immediately before it.

The Senate beat the House to the punch last week by passing the first in a series of bills dealing with the malpractice problem. The measure, sent to the House which has a similar one of its own, would guarantee malpractice insurance to all Michigan doctors.

The availability of insurance is the key problem in what Milliken and the medical profession call an approaching crisis. New doctors are unable to get insurance and insured doctors — especially in the high-risk categories — are watching their premium costs spiral out of sight. Unless a quick solution is found, doctors warn, new doctors won't come to Michigan, older ones may be forced to leave or retire and the quality of medical care in the state will suffer.

Last week Milliken urged action be taken across the whole field of malpractice insurance this month, to implement legislation by his self-imposed deadline of June 1. House Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davison, and Minority Leader Dennis Cawthorne, R-Manistee, issued a joint statement designating this week as "malpractice insurance week." They said they would press for approval of malpractice bills by the House Insurance, Public Health and Judiciary committees. "These committees will be holding hearings and speeding these bills to the House floor where they will get priority treatment," the two leaders said.

A similar batch of bills lies in the Senate Judiciary Committee. Lawmakers evidently will be asked to follow a confusing trail of legislation as various alternatives criss-cross between the two chambers and their committees. Crim and Cawthorne said rough bipartisan agreement existed on all major malpractice issues except measures to lower premium costs. Among those possibilities — although highly controversial — are proposals for contractual and binding arbitration of lawsuits.

Other malpractice measures include bills to:

- Require the reporting of information about the problem.
- Require additional hours of education for doctors annually.
- Provide subpoena power to obtain medical records.
- Limit the liability of all medical personnel who give emergency medical care in hospitals.

The measure passed by the Senate last week was a stop-gap measure to insure the availability of malpractice insurance, and would expire 18 months after it takes effect. The bill would establish a state fund, from premiums paid by doctors who could get insurance nowhere else, to pay any settlements or awards in malpractice cases.

Late Snow May Hurt Corn Crop

By MARY SCHEIER
Associated Press Writer

FAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — This month's surprise spring snowstorm won't make life any easier for Michigan corn farmers, a Michigan State University expert says.

"The snow, at the rate it's melting, is going to delay tillage and planting. We've got to have some warmer weather," Dr. Lynn Robertson said. He is a tillage and cash crops specialist at MSU.

If the snowfall hurts corn yields this summer, it would be the second straight year that weather had taken its toll on the crop.

Snowfall from the unexpected April 2 storm was 13 inches here and ran as high as 17 inches in other parts of the state.

"We have lots of years where people are already in the fields by now," Robertson said. "We like to have a lot of our corn planted by the first week in May. After mid-May the yields go down tremendously."

"We have a short growing season, we don't have enough growing days and it's a fight to plant and harvest," he added.

Robertson said that if the weather doesn't warm up, "It will delay getting out in the fields maybe a week or two weeks. It would cut the yield some. After mid-May you can expect a two bushel-a-day decrease in yield."

"I don't know when farmers are going to be able to plant," he added. "If we get some warm weather, we'll be okay. If temperatures stay in the 40's, for the larger farms it is going to delay their plowing and planting."

"Probably the big problem is that the soil is wet. If they get out there with heavy tractors they'll compact the soil. I would caution farmers not to be hasty."

Nevertheless, he said, "most people are being quite optimistic" about this year's corn crop.

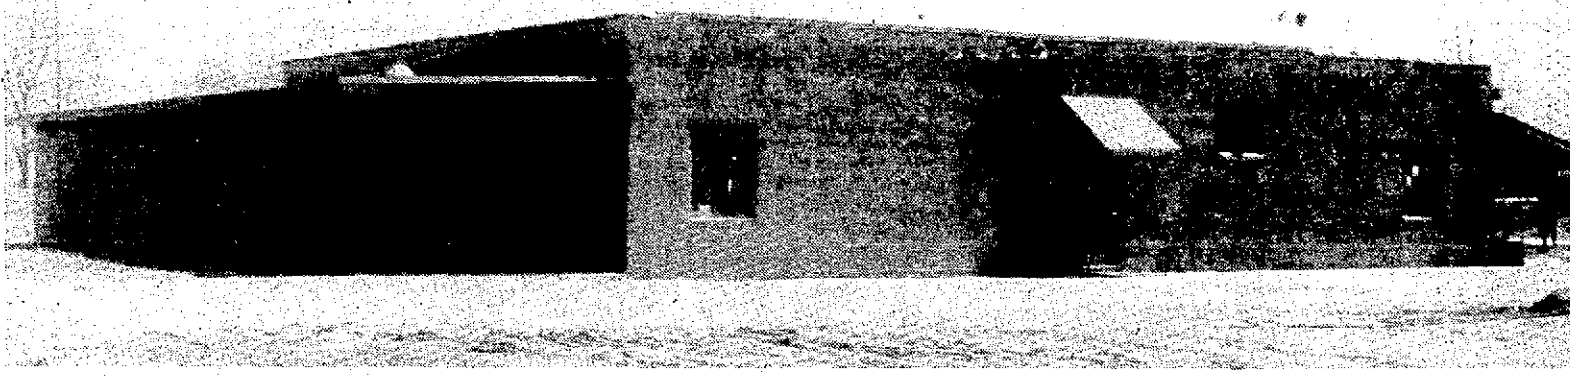

Michigan's 1974 crop was the victim of bad weather.

"Last spring we started off really dry," Robertson recalled. "Then wet weather hit right after planting. Then it was very dry in the summer and we had a smaller crop than we expected. Many farmers had unprofitable yields. The southeastern part of the state was hurt worse than any of the other."

The state's 1974 corn for grain production was 110.4 million bushels compared to 133.5 million bushels in 1973. There is no production projection yet for this year from the Michigan Crop Reporting Service.

How substantially the unexpected snow interferes with the state's corn production won't be clear until harvest time, Robertson said.

But he said people are "thinking and hoping the weather will cooperate and yields will be considerably above what they were last year."

STATE OFFICIALS REVIEWING POLICY

Few Firms Fined For Industrial Spills

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — More than 1.7 million gallons of oil, gasoline, pesticides and other chemicals splashed across the Michigan landscape last year due to 732 industrial and commercial accidents, state records show.

Yet the state collected only $4,750 in fines from the companies that did the spilling — and not one penny from the Michigan Seamless Tube Co., which was the source of the biggest oil spill in Michigan history.

More than 300 of last year's spills resulted in oil or chemicals flowing into Michigan rivers and streams, yet only three cases were referred to the attorney general's office for action.

The philosophy of state natural resources department officials generally has been that business already pays enough because it loses the value of the product it spills and then has to pay for the cleanup.

"Our approach has been that people are going to be reluctant to report spills if they know you're going to fine them," said William Turney, director of the DNR's bureau of water management. "I don't think there should be a massive crackdown as such. That just discourages reporting."

Lately, though, Turney and the DNR have been taking another look at the approach which has left the attorney general's office with virtually "zero caseload" regarding industrial spills.

The result is likely to be that more cases will be referred to the attorney general's office for possible criminal prosecution and that more companies may pay the state for its trouble in monitoring spills.

Fines of between $2,500 and $25,000 per incident can be levied through the courts.

Under new rules, losses of greater than 10,000 gallons automatically will be referred to the attorney general. So will losses which result in significant fish or wildlife mortality.

"We're going to start sending business the bill for our time and effort required in monitoring and supervising cleanups," said Turney. Companies will have to reimburse the state for DNR staff time spent on spills in excess of $300.

DNR critics say the new rules won't result in any major changes, though.

"Our feeling is that any and all oil spills ought to be reviewed by our office," said Deputy Atty. Gen. Stanley Steinborn. "We don't think any agency should be able to decide on its own whether or not the law has been violated."

The broad language of the Michigan Water Resources Commission Act gives the state a virtual carte blanche to impose a get-tough policy against industrial spillers if it wishes to. It is unlawful in Michigan to discharge directly or indirectly into the water any substance that may be harmful to the environment.

"If there was someone else sitting in my chair, I suppose that person could decide to refer everything, all 732 incidents, to the attorney general's office," said Turney. "But look, I mean, the attorney general has limited staff, too."

The DNR's budget for monitoring and supervising cleanup operations is $130,000, said Turney, who wants to hire nine more staff members to do the work.

The biggest spill in state history occurred between late October 1973 and March 1974, when 400,000 gallons of fuel oil seeped from a leaky pipe system under the Michigan Seamless Tube Co. in Oakland County.

DNR investigators found some of the oil in a nearby stream and traced it back to the plant, where incredulous company officials said they had been trying to figure out for months how they could be burning so much fuel oil.

Seamless Tube Co. officials were hauled before the State Water Resources Commission, which under traditional operating rules had to decide whether to refer the case to the attorney general's office for prosecution.

"The company acted in good faith and they spent a huge amount of money on cleanup operations," said commission chairman John Vogt of the state Public Health Department. "I guess it's a matter of whether a company acts in good faith and acts responsibly to repair any damage or whether they disclaim any responsibility. We're interested in pollution control, not just in going out as policemen."

Acting under the old policy, the commission decided not to refer the Seamless Tube case to the attorney general's office for prosecution.

Under the new rules, which the commission itself approved, the case would automatically have been referred.

"Legal action is not the only method by which effective action can be taken," said Vogt. "You try to work with industry."

Thomas previously was vice president of the First National bank, Elkhart, Ind. and Peoples State bank, St. Joseph. He started his banking career with the United California bank, Los Angeles.

Thomas is a graduate of the University of Iowa and the graduate school of banking at Southern Methodist university. He also attended the graduate school of finance at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles.

He has served as vice president for economic development and director of the Twin Cities Chamber of Commerce, in addition to being a member of the executive committee. He has served as chairman of the St. Joseph's businessmen's association. He was also a member of the Twin Cities United Way board and assistant treasurer, a member of the Twin Cities Rotary club, the United Methodist church and Economic club of Southwestern Michigan.

FREDERICK C. THOMAS

FTC Chairman Economic Club's April 23 Guest

Lewis A. Engman, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, will be the 181st speaker before members and guests of the economic club of Southwestern Michigan, according to Atty. J. D. Hartwig, chairman of the club's speakers committee. Engman will speak Wednesday, April 23, on "Government Regulation."

The dinner meeting will start at 6:45 p.m. in Ramada Inn, Benton township.

A former Grand Rapids attorney, Engman was sworn in as chairman of the Federal Trade Commission on Feb. 20, 1973, making him, at 37, the youngest person ever to head that powerful government agency.

Engman went to Washington in 1970 as a legislative counsel for the President's Special Assistant for Consumer Affairs and later was named general counsel for that office. In June 1971, he was appointed assistant director of the White House Domestic Council, with responsibility for a wide range of issues including tax policy, school finance, and antitrust and trade regulation.

Since going to the Federal Trade Commission, Mr. Engman has directed particular attention to the agency's responsibilities in antitrust law enforcement. The commission has conducted major investigations of possible antitrust violations in the energy and food industries. Another thrust has been the implementation of the commission's line of business program, which is intended to carry out the commission's mandate to assure existence of fair and competitive markets.

Engman was elected to Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Michigan, where he was graduated in 1957 with high honors in economics. He studied at University College and the London School of Economics in England in 1957-58, and received a law degree from Harvard in 1961.

In 1961, Engman joined the Grand Rapids law firm of Warner, Norcross and Judd. In 1965 he became a partner.

In July 1974, Engman was named by Time magazine as one of the nation's 200 "Faces of the Future."

He is married to the former Jacqueline Ransford Graham, and they have three sons.

REP. BELA KENNEDY:

Tax Doubles In 10 Years

LANSING — State Rep. Bela Kennedy (R-Bangor), said in a newsletter that the average per capita tax levied by the state has more than doubled in the past 10 years.

In 1964, the average per capita tax levied by the state was $155.34, but 10 years later it had climbed to $308.67, Kennedy said. "A family of four would be liable for nearly $1,000 in state taxes alone," Kennedy said, "and this does not include federal taxes, local taxes, or special assessments such as sewers, streets, water, etc."

Kennedy said that many of these taxes are hidden from the general public by being placed on items or services people must use or buy.

Kennedy provided the following list of how the state gets its money from personal taxes. The per capita figures include the 1974 rate first as compared to 1964 (in parentheses).

Sales taxes, $116.03 ($64.36); Use, $14.46 ($6.91); Personal income (began in 1967-68) $106.14 ($30.36); Business taxes, $51.00 ($22.50); Excise taxes, $23.38, ($15.47); intangible taxes, $4.73 ($4.48); gas and weight, $37.96 ($29.84); specific taxes (luxury items, cigarettes, liquor) $18.01 ($8.93); other $6.36 ($3.07).

The state sales tax on food and drugs was abolished this year, but an increase in state income tax will take effect May 1.

"What concerns me so alarmingly, is that while our revenues have increased 191 per cent since 1964, our expenditures have increased 213 per cent," Kennedy said the state is now "spending nearly 11 per cent of your income for you."

Nicklaus Scores Historic Masters Triumph

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — There Jack Nicklaus stood on the 18th hole — Augusta's par three Red Bird hole — looking at a 40-foot downhill putt that must have looked more like a mile.

His ears were still ringing from the cheers of the thousands lining the long par five No. 15 just behind him where tall Tom Weiskopf had just knocked home a 12-footer for a birdie that sent him into the lead of the 36th Masters Golf Tournament with three holes to play.

"Sometimes you get a feeling about these things," Nicklaus said afterward. "I thought I could make the putt. I decided to use a different style. I decided to hand-stroke the putt rather than hit it.

"I knew Tommy, watching from the tee, would have a hard time playing the 18th after watching me make a two. So I struck it and it rolled in. That, for me, was the tournament."

A momentarily shaken Weiskopf proceeded to leave his five-iron tee shot 80 feet short on No. 16 and watch his approach putt roll to the left, still 13 feet away. He bogged and there was a two-shot shift in those dying moments of one of the greatest golf tournaments ever played.

"I got the two shots back that I had lost on the 14th," Nicklaus said.

Thousands pouring over Augusta's floral acres and millions viewing on television watched the battle go down to the final hole — a no-quarter, no-choke shootout involving the three finest golfers of the age.

Nicklaus emerged the winner, an unprecedented fifth Masters, his 15th major crown, the first leg on the only honor that still evades him — the elusive Grand Slam, encompassing the Masters, U. S. and British Opens and the PGA, all in a single year.

Nicklaus finished with a four-under-par 68 for a 72-hole score of 275 but called it "the greatest Masters I have ever played, better than when I set the record (271) in 1965."

Weiskopf, a tall princely man with a swing of graceful power, and young, tow-headed Johnny Miller, at 27 rated by many as Nicklaus' heir apparent, were just one shot behind at 277, both barely missing birdie putts on the final green that would have tied them for the championship.

"I was just damn lucky," a gracious Nicklaus said. "Tom Weiskopf had a right to win. Johnny Miller had a right to win. Nobody gave it away. I felt a sense of history out there."

The 27-year-old Miller, Pro Golfer of the Year in 1974 and winner of 11 tour tournaments in the past 11½ months, came from 11 shots back after the first two rounds to miss carrying Nicklaus into a playoff by a whisker. Off to a shocking opening round 75, the stringbean Californian with the fierce competitive spirit fired successive rounds of 71-65-66, setting a record 202 for the last 54 holes and 131 for the last 36.

"I am no Jack Nicklaus, but I'm not bad," he said later. "I proved to myself and to everybody else that I can win other places than Phoenix and Tucson." He won those two Arizona tournaments plus the Bob Hope Classic earlier this year.

Weiskopf, at 32 three years younger than Nicklaus, grew up in the shadow of the game's premier golfer in Columbus, Ohio, and has been endeavoring to keep an often explosive temperament from spoiling one of golf's finest rounded games.

His second-place finish marked the fourth time he has been runner-up in this invitation event, which like spring flowers seems to bring the whole game alive.

He made no effort to conceal his disappointment.

"I can't explain the pain," he said. "I felt terrible."

Nicklaus picked up the $40,000 first prize and moved within striking distance of Miller as the year's leading money winner. Miller has earned $149,476. Nicklaus now has won $149,242. Weiskopf $112,488.

Hale Irwin, the reigning U.S. Open champion, also gave the last day fans a thrill by shooting an eight-under-par 64 — tying course records previously made by Lloyd Mangrum, Nicklaus and England's Maurice Bembridge. He finished with 282, tying Bobby Nichols, who had a 68. Former champion Bill Casper shot 70 for 283 and sixth money.

Jack Nicklaus $40,000	68-72-68-67-275
Tom Weiskopf $21,250	69-72-66-70-277
Johnny Miller $21,250	73-71-65-66-277
Hale Irwin $12,500	73-74-71-64-282

Tigers In First Despite NY Win

White Sox Sweep Twin Bill

NEW YORK (AP) — Hey, guess what? The New York Yankees won a ballgame. And the Detroit Tigers won three, vaulting into a three-way tie for first place in the American League East.

The Yankees, on paper one of the strongest teams in the American League, had gone nearly a week without a victory before finally breaking the ice Sunday. And the young-looking Tigers, picked by almost everyone to be the division's patsies, are showing some unexpected spunk.

"The fans seem to be worrying more about the early losses than the players do," said Doc Medich, whose two-hit beauty earned the Yankees a 6-0 victory in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader with the Tigers.

The Yankees then reverted to early-season form and dropped the second game, their fourth loss of the year, by a 5-2 score as Lerrin LaGrow hurled a four-hitter.

"I've known for about a week that I would pitch today and I've been quietly thinking about this, going over the hitters every day in my head since we left Florida," LaGrow said. He had a terrible spring after losing 19 games for the Tigers last season.

"I really tried to get myself ready for this game," he said. "I guess that's what I have to do from now on. I know I have to have a good year."

The Tigers now take a four-day break, hosting the Yankees for three games beginning Friday. The layoff has Tiger Manager Ralph Houk turning.

"It just shouldn't be allowed," Houk said. "It's terrible. I can't see how the league could let something like this happen."

The Tigers originally were to meet Cleveland for two games, but the Indians bowed out, leaving the Tigers at home for three days of practice.

In the upcoming weekend series, Joe Coleman, Mickey Lolich and Vern Riffe will face Doc Medich, Rudy May and Catfish Hunter. Houk praised the Tiger pitching and said he was pleased the way his club had beaten some of the better pitchers in the division.

In the New York dugout, things were different.

"I'm not too happy with our hitting," said Manager Bill Virdon, who scheduled a workout today for his faltering crew. "I hope that perhaps some batting practice will help. (Bobby) Bonds isn't swinging the bat the way he should ... and other guys are in the same boat."

Sunday's first-game total was the biggest run production so far this season by the Yankees, who currently have last place all to themselves in the AL East.

After Medich pitched the Yankees to their first triumph of the season, LaGrow pitched the Tigers to their third. LaGrow's triumph was aided by Willie Horton knocking in two runs. His RBI single highlighted a three-run rally for Detroit in the third inning of the second game and gave the Tigers a 4-0 lead. It was all the cushion that LaGrow needed. The Yanks' runs came on a double by Chris Chambliss and a triple by Jim Mason in the fourth and Walt Williams' single in the ninth.

Ron LeFlore provided the Tigers with their first run of the game with a homer off Rudy May in the first inning. The Tigers scored their final run on a double by Tom Verzer in the eighth.

The Yanks won the opener as Medich struck out five, walked two and limited Detroit to singles by Gary Sutherland in the first inning and Art James in the third. The Yanks nicked Tom Walker for single runs in the third and fourth innings, then chased him with a three-run fifth when Elliott Maddox was safe on third baseman John Knox' error. Bobby Bonds singled, Ron Blomberg walked, Nettles singled to right for two runs and Blomberg came in when first baseman Nate Colbert bobbled Chambliss' grounder.

Singles by Maddox, Piniella and Blomberg off reliever Ray Bare accounted for the Yanks' final run in the sixth as four Tiger errors did little to hamper the Yankees' victory.

Elsewhere, the Cleveland Indians trimmed the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1; the Baltimore Orioles routed the Boston Red Sox 11-3; the Kansas City Royals stopped the Minnesota Twins 53 and the Chicago White Sox took a doubleheader from the California Angels, 7-5 in 12 innings and 5-4. A game between Oakland and Texas was rained out.

John Lowenstein tied the score with a leadoff home run in the ninth inning and John Ellis then doubled home two more runs, carrying Gaylord Perry to his 200th major league victory as Cleveland beat Milwaukee.

Particularly on his mind was Hank Aaron, who has a lifetime batting average of .310 against Perry. The right-hander got Aaron out four times Sunday with an assortment of hard sliders and curves.

Brooks Robinson drilled four hits and scored four runs, leading Baltimore over Boston. The Orioles collected 10 of their 15 hits off Luis Tiant, who had a 10-3 record against them since joining Boston.

Hal McRae drove in runs in each of his first three appearances, leading Kansas City over Minnesota. Lifting his RBI total to seven this season, McRae doubled home a run in the first, singled home one in the third and doubled home another in the fourth inning as the Royals mounted a 5-0 lead behind Steve Busby.

Ken Henderson knocked in four runs, including two to cap a three-run rally in the 12th inning, as Chicago beat California in the first game of their doubleheader. Bill Sharp and Jorge Orta each drove in two runs as the White Sox won the second game.

SuperSonics Bounce Detroit Out Of NBA Playoffs

SEATTLE (AP) — Bob Lanier says the Detroit Pistons beat themselves, but Seattle Coach Bill Russell insists his SuperSonics had more than a little to do with ending eliminating the Pistons from the National Basketball League playoffs.

Russell credited Slick Watts with being the inspiration behind the SuperSonics' 100-83 victory over Detroit Saturday night.

But Lanier, the towering Pistons center who scored 23 of his 28 points in the second half said, "We beat ourselves. We just weren't hungry enough."

The victory moved Seattle into the West Division semifinals. The Sonics will open a best-of-seven series tonight on the road against the Golden State Warriors.

Russell sent Watts into the game in the first quarter with the score tied 13-13.

"I played the odds," Russell said. "And Slick made me look awfully good, didn't he?"

"Actually I looked around my house before the game and saw there wasn't enough furniture," Watts said. "I knew the first round playoff money just wasn't going to be enough."

Watts continually harassed the Pistons' guards, particularly Dave Bing, and Detroit committed 10 turnovers in the first quarter.

Seattle's rookie center Tom Burleson scored 17 points in the first half, helping the Sonics to a 36-41 halftime lead.

But Detroit charged back in the third quarter, hitting 10 of 19 from the field, compared to Seattle's six of 23. Lanier, playing on two bad knees and held to six points in the first half, broke loose in the third quarter, scoring 13 points. The entire Seattle team had only 16.

The Pistons continued their drive into the fourth quarter as Bing hit two quick baskets, cutting Seattle's margin to 72-88. Seattle built it back to 85-77 with 6:38 to go.

Detroit then scored six straight points: John Mengelt drove for a basket and Lanier hit from the top of the key and on the front end of a fast break, reducing Seattle's margin to two with 4:30 left to play.

Archie Clark sank two free throws for the Sonics and Burleson put in a rebound. Lanier came back with a basket, but Spencer Haywood scored and Watts stole the ball for a layup, giving the Sonics a 93-86 edge with 2:23 to go. The teams traded baskets the rest of the way.

BH, St. Joe Split Opening Twin Bill

By JERRY DYKSTRA
Staff Sports Writer
St. Joseph used some lusty hitting and Benton Harbor some clutch pitching in their doubleheader split Saturday afternoon.

The Bears banged out 12 hits in the opener on their way to an 11-4 victory but the Tigers came back in the nightcap to win a 4-3 thriller behind a nifty mop-up job by hurler William Fryer.

The twin bill opened the season for both clubs and also marked the debut of new Tiger coach Paul Wilhite.

The host Bears outlived the Tigers 18-10 in the two games but a crucial error, which allowed three unearned Harbor runs, cost St. Joe the second-game victory. Fryer of the Tigers and Greg Priebe of the Bears both collected three hits for the day to highlight the batting attacks.

Rick Dyer, Cory Benford, Mike Collier, Roger Vogie, Jeff Miskill and Greg Priebe all swatted two hits each in the opener for the Bears with Benford and Vogie both driving in three runs.

The Bears put together two big innings, the third and fifth, when they scored nine of their runs and punched nine of their safeties.

Two misjudged flies by Harbor fielders helped St. Joe in its four-run third frame. Dyer, Benford and Vogie produced RBI singles while Collier socked a run-scoring triple. The Bears salted away the win in the fifth with five tallies. Tim Case singled and Dyer doubled with both scoring on Benford's single. Two passed balls and a wild pitch accounted for the other runs.

A two-run single by Vogie in the sixth closed out the Bears' run parade.

Miskill picked up the mound win as he hurled four and a third of hitless ball. But the hard-throwing senior, who fanned six and walked seven, issued four consecutive free

Lakers Defeated In Tennis Debut

BUCHANAN — A sweep of all three doubles matches gave Buchanan a 5-2 victory over Lake Michigan Catholic in the Lakers' first varsity tennis match Friday afternoon.

The two teams broke even in singles with Buchanan's Joe Marazita beating Al Bender 6-4, 6-3 and Marlow Harrison downing Ann Barlow 6-1, 6-3 while the Lakers Craig Meridian beat Mike Moon 4-6, 6-1, 6-1 and Scott Henderson whipped John Criddle 6-2, 6-2.

In doubles Jim Fargus-Kert Smith beat Tom Hanley-Keith Gietas 6-2, 6-4. Andy Wood-Jerry Beckey defeated Dave Kettlehut-Mike Takacs 6-2, 6-2 and Dave Mitchell-Tim Sullivan took Jeff Park-Beth West 6-2, 6-0.

passed in the fifth and was yanked in favor of Case.

The Tigers picked up two more runs in the fifth on an infield roller by Bart Bodtke — Harbor's first hit — and an infield out but Case pitched out of more trouble. A RBI single by Richard Haney following an one-bagger by Fryer and a Bear error ended the Tigers' scoring in the sixth.

Jon Hermann, the starter, was tagged with the setback with Haney coming in the fifth.

Benton Harbor, limited to three hits, stranded nine runners.

The Tigers exploded for three runs with two out in the third inning of the nightcap for the margin of victory.

With the score tied 1-1, a bunt single by Fryer and a St. Joe error put runners on with two outs. Mike Schultz, John Hamilton and Chris Harper all followed with RBI singles.

The Bears, who had picked up a run in the first frame on a run-producing safety by Bubba LaBaumard, cut the gap to 4-3 in the fifth on a triple by Jay Ciarravino to left and a single by Greg Priebe.

But then Fryer took over for starter and winner Bodtke to put out the fire.

The Bears threatened in the final inning on a walk and a single by LaBaumard. But Fryer got the dangerous Miskill, who had two hits for the day, to fly out to deep center to end the game.

Fryer and Schultz both rifled two hits in the seven-hit Harbor offense. LaBaumard was the lone Bear to get more than one hit as St. Joe finished with six safeties and left eight runners on the bases.

Mickey Ott was the loser but he deserved a better fate as he pitched four innings, fanning six and allowing only one earned run. Ed Owsianka was impressive with three innings of one-hit relief.

Both teams finished with six errors in the two games, played below sunny skies but 38-degree temperature.

Benton Harbor, which had its first four scheduled games of the season all called off due to the bad weather, entertains Portage Central this afternoon. The Bears travel to Buchanan on Wednesday to start a busy stretch of five games in four days.

Harbor Sprinters Starting Fast

Wilson High Jumps 6-6

Brandywine's Dennis Wilson leaped to second place in the high jump on southwestern Michigan's all-time track honor roll Saturday in a Blossomland meet against River Valley.

Meanwhile, Benton Harbor sprinters Maurice Burton and Jeff Hicks were just missing the all-time honor roll in the 220 dash at the prestigious Mansfield (Ohio) Relays.

Brandywine's Wilson cleared 6 feet, 8 inches as his Bobcats defeated River Valley 68-55. The previous No. 2 leap was at 6 feet, 4 inches by Larry Woodford of Niles in 1963, Jim Anthony of Brandywine in 1965 and Dave Brown of Hartford in 1965. The area record was set by 6 feet, 8 inches by Niles' Lowe Garner in 1971.

Benton Harbor's Burton and Hicks each had 21.9 clockings in preliminary 220 events at Mansfield. The No. 5 spot on the all-time honor roll is a 21.8 clocking by Benton Harbor's Bert Copeland way back in 1941.

Burton also posted a fine 51.1 seconds time in a 440 dash and teamed with Steve Cooper, Alex Williams and Harry Williams for a 1:33.8 clocking in the 380 relay.

Alex Williams also ripped off the season's best area time in the 100 dash at 10.1 (Harry Williams posted at 10.4), but none of the Tigers finished among the leaders.

Hicks, Benton Harbor's fastest runner, pulled a hamstring muscle in the 220 and scratched from the rest of the meet.

'Tiny' Evens NBA Playoff Series With Bulls

Archibald Quarterbacks King Win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nate "Tiny" Archibald made like a tricky football quarterback Sunday.

The basketball ace of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings baffled Chicago with a dazzling exhibition of penetrating the Bulls' defense. If the Bulls played Tiny to pass off, he went in for the layup. If they played him for a layup, he passed off.

After it was all over, the Kings had conquered the Bulls 102-95 in a National Basketball Association Western Conference semifinal playoff game that wasn't as close as the score indicates.

"I really didn't know whether I was going to penetrate all the way for a layup or pass off," said Archibald. "They were trying to prevent me from going all the way for a layup."

Often, Archibald, with seemingly easy shots close to the basket, flipped the ball to Jimmy Walker or Larry McNeill.

The Kings' victory evened the best-of-seven series at 1-1. The teams play again Wednesday night in Chicago where the Bulls held Archibald to 12 points and won the opener 95-89 last week.

Two games are on tap tonight with Boston and Golden State getting into playoff action for the first time. Boston opens a best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series against the Houston Rockets.

Houston earned the right to go against the defending champion Celtics by eliminating the New York Knicks with a convincing 118-86 triumph Saturday.

The Warriors go against the upstart Seattle SuperSonics in game one of a Western Conference semifinal series. Seattle advanced by dumping the Detroit Pistons 100-93 Saturday night.

With the Kings ahead at half-time 55-51, Archibald and Walker broke the battle wide open in the early moments of the third quarter with a flurry of baskets that opened up a 16-point lead. During that spree, Archibald sank 10 points and Walker eight.

Walker started it with two quick baskets. After McNeill, who topped all scorers with 28 points, hit two free throws, Archibald chipped in with six straight points, and Walker poked in two more field goals.

Walker had 26 points. Bob Love of the Bulls, who contributed 38 points in Chicago's first-game victory, had to settle for 21 in this one.

Dick Motta, the Bulls coach, was extremely disappointed over the way the Kings manhandled his club in the second half and reiterated what he has said earlier:

"If we win this series, we have to keep Archibald off of the free throw line."

"They kept me off the free throw line today and we still won it," said Archibald. "I got only two chances for free throws. The team that wins it isn't going to do it by stopping just one man. You have to stop the whole team."

Flyers Plan To Keep Cup

Weary Hawks Lose Quarterfinal Opener

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Any pretenders to the Philadelphia Flyers' Stanley Cup throne are in for a battle, if Sunday's Maple Leafs-Flyers game is any indication of the way the National Hockey League playoffs will go.

After two periods Sunday night, the Flyers were losing 3-2. They had taken only 12 shots on goal, and faced the prospect of killing 2:32 of the major penalty Andre Dupont had incurred for head-butting in a fight with the Leafs' Dave Dunn.

Did they panic going into the period, these veterans of only eight years in the NHL? Did they throw caution to the wind? Hardly, says Coach Fred Shero.

In between the second and third periods, we talked about the situation," recalled Shero. "I told them there was nothing to worry about. Twenty minutes is a lot of time."

Twenty minutes, four goals and 14 shots later, the Flyers skated away with a 6-3 triumph in the opener of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-final series with Toronto.

Leafs goalie Gord McRae drew compliments from Toronto Coach Red Kelly for his first quarter-final appearance.

Rick MacLeish gave the Flyers a 2-0 lead with first-period goals 4:31 apart. Toronto came back behind Dave Williams, Blaine Stoughton and Darryl Sittler before MacLeish capped the third-period uprising with his third goal of the game. Bill Barber, Reggie Leach and Jim Watson had the other goals for Philadelphia.

In other quarter-final openers Sunday night, the Montreal Canadiens dropped the Vancouver Canucks 6-2, the Pittsburgh Penguins topped the New York Islanders 5-4 and the Buffalo Sabres stopped the Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 on national television.

Guy Lafleur scored two goals and added two assists for the Canadiens, who also got two goals from defenseman Guy Lapointe to extend their domination over Vancouver.

Yvan Cournoyer and Steve Shutt also scored for Montreal. Paulin Bordeleau and Gerry O'Flaherty gave Vancouver a temporary 2-2 tie in the first period.

"We're going right to the Cup," promised Pittsburgh goalie Gary Inness after facing 40 shots and holding off the New Yorkers' frantic third-period attempts at a tie.

First-period goals by Vic Jhadfield, Ron Stackhouse and Pete Laframboise didn't hurt. Andre St. Laurent and Bob Bourne brought New York within one, but Bob Kelly and Dave Burrows restored the three-goal Pittsburgh edge.

The well-rested Sabres had an easy time with the weary Black Hawks, who gained the quarter-finals by outbattling the Boston Bruin while Buffalo enjoyed its first-round bye. First period goals by Danny Gare, Gil Perreault and former Black Hawk Fred Stanfield helped the Sabres cruise in.

Cubs Shut Out Expos On Stone's Four-Hitter

Phillies' Rookie Blanks Cards In Debut

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

You've got to admit one thing about young Tom Underwood. You can't knock his timing.

Philadelphia's 21-year-old left-hander made his first major league start an auspicious one, zapping St. Louis with a five-hitter Sunday and riding Greg Luzinski's home run to a 2-0 victory over the Cardinals.

"I was in the right place at the right time," Underwood said of his opportunity to make the Phillies' roster. "They needed pitching help and I was the guy who had a good year." He was 14-5 with a 2.51 earned-run average and 157 strikeouts in 195 innings last year at Reading of the Double A Eastern League. "He's cool," said Manager Danny Ozark. "He was just as cool the first time I saw him, two years ago."

The reason, according to Underwood, was the man he was throwing the ball to — catcher Bob Boone. "I didn't know the hitters. Boone did," he acknowledged. "I just threw the ball where he wanted it."

Luzinski pulled a Bob Forsch fastball over the left field fence in the fourth inning and Dave Cash singled for an insurance run in the fifth.

In the rest of the National League it was Pittsburgh 5, New York 3; Chicago 7, Montreal 6; Cincinnati 10, San Diego 0; Los Angeles 7, Houston 4, and in a doubleheader, San Francisco 5, Atlanta 0 in the first game and San Francisco 4, Atlanta 2 in the second.

Bruce Kison outdid Underwood with a three-hitter for the Pirates but kept things interesting by giving up homers to Dave Kingman and Rusty Staub.

Al Oliver collected his 1,000th career hit while Rennie Stennett had two timely hits to help Pittsburgh beat Tom Seaver. The Bucs took the lead for good in the fourth when Stennett singled and scored on Richie Hebner's double, then they made it 5-2 off reliever Harry Parker in the seventh on a homer by Stennett. Oliver's walk, Willie Stargell's single and Richie Zisk's grounder.

Steve Stone checked Montreal on four hits for the Cubs while Jerry Morales batted in three runs and Pete LaCock drove in two.

Chicago punched across three unearned runs off Steve Rogers in the third inning, then chased Rogers in the fifth with three more runs.

Cincinnati's Don Gullett outdid Underwood, Kison and Stone with his arm and his bat.

He pitched a two-hitter and drove in a pair of runs with a single to highlight a seven-run burst in the fifth inning against the Padres.

Joe Morgan also had a two-run single in the fifth. All of the fifth-inning runs were unearned against San Diego's Dave Freisleben because of three infield errors.

SJ Netters Bow

CULVER, Ind. — A 6-3, 4-6, 6-1 victory in No. 1 doubles by Tom Lannon and Jeff Baillif was St. Joseph's only triumph here Saturday in a 6-1 loss to Culver Military Academy.

It was the first setback for the Bears, now 2-1 for the season.

Jim Wynn's three-run homer, breaking a 3-3 tie, and Steve Yeager's solo clout boosted the Dodgers past Houston, offsetting Ken Boswell's three-run scoring singles for the Astros.

Rookie John Montefusco pitched a five-hit shutout in the opener while Garry Maddox and Gary Matthews each drove in a pair of runs. In the nightcap, Peter Falcone made his major league debut by checking Atlanta on four hits, the only damaging one being Vic Correll's two-run homer.

The Giants took the second game with the help of right fielder Dusty Baker's two errors on Derrel Thomas' single. Maddox singled to lead off the eighth inning and took third when Thomas singled to right-center. Maddox scored to break a 2-2 tie as Baker bobbled the ball.

Thomas took second on his wild throw home and Bobby Marcer followed with a single that had been a triple until the Braves pointed out that he'd missed second base en route to third.

Spartans, Wolverines Hold Lead In Big Ten Baseball

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Michigan State, Michigan and Wisconsin moved into a tie for the early Big Ten leadership as the conference baseball action began over the weekend.

The Spartans took a pair from Illinois by scores of 5-3 and 9-5 in Saturday's action to give Michigan State a 4-0 conference mark.

Michigan slipped past Purdue 11-4 and 7-6 in eight innings to also boost its conference mark to 4-0. Wisconsin pounded Indiana 9-6 and 13-0 in a doubleheader played Sunday in Skokie, Ill., because of poor field conditions at both schools.

Ohio State and Northwestern split a doubleheader as the Wildcats took the first game Sunday, 4-3, and the Buckeyes won the second 10-4. Both teams are 1-3 in conference play.

In other Saturday games, Iowa and Minnesota split two games; Indiana took a doubleheader from Northwestern, 5-4 and 6-1, and Wisconsin downed Ohio State, 12-2 and 6-5.

Michigan State took advantage of 11 Illinois errors in the doubleheader. In the opener, the Spartans broke a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning with two runs for the victory.

In the second contest, the Illini tied Michigan State with four runs in the fourth inning as Steve Scott hit a two-run homer. But the Spartans had two runs in both the fifth and sixth innings to catch a 9-5 victory. The triumph boosted Michigan State's record to 13-8 overall, while Illinois fell to 0-4 in conference play and 12-9 for the season.

Michigan's Dick Walterhouse smashed a grand slam home run in the first game as the Wolverines downed Purdue 11-4. Mark Grenkoski also had a home run and ended the day with three hits, three runs batted in and scored four runs.

In the second game, Purdue's John Stevens slugged a three-run homer in the seventh inning to tie the game at 6-6. But Michigan's Dan Damiani smacked an inside-the-park homer in the eighth inning to give the Wolverines a 7-6 triumph.

The victories gave Michigan a 7-6 record for the season, while Purdue fell to 0-4 in the conference and 2-9 overall. Last year's conference champions, Minnesota and Iowa, each won a game in a doubleheader at Iowa City.

The Hawkeyes won the first game 8-0 behind Mark Ewell's two-hit pitching. Third baseman Brad Trickey was three for three at the plate and drove in three runs.

In the second game, the Gophers ended a six-game losing streak with a 12-2 victory. Perry Bower scattered four hits for the win.

Both teams are 1-1 in Big Ten play. Minnesota is 3-7 overall and Iowa stands at 9-7 for the year.

Stadium's Smooth Progress Miracle

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Authorities in Pontiac say the new Metropolitan Stadium will be ready on schedule for the Detroit Lions' 1975 National Football League preseason and regular season openers.

Officials said the giant stadium also is within its budgeted $55.7 million cost. The Lions first game in the stadium is a preseason exhibition against the Kansas City Chiefs scheduled Aug. 23.

Pontiac Metropolitan Authority executive director Bob Rummel says some people are calling the stadium's smooth progress "a miracle."

He says other cities' experiences with spiraling costs and delayed schedules for their sports domes makes the Pontiac stadium unique. Rummel said the cost is less than a third of the estimated $163 million for a similar stadium nearing completion in New Orleans.

Costs were held down, Rummel said, thanks to a 3 to 4 percent climb in inflation and by low bids stemming from the economic slowdown.

Furthermore, it's predicted the stadium will finish in the black its first year, taking in an estimated $5 million.

The price of seats run from $12.50 to $4.50, with all but four push boxes leased for $38,000, and another 800 persons digging up $900 to join the "Stadium Club," allowing them to sit in the facility's restaurant during games.

Rummel says the 60,000-seat, 200-foot tall stadium now is 70 per cent complete. It could be billed as the world's "largest, permanent covered seating facility," supporters say.

Construction began 15 months ago and is to officially be complete in October when the fiberglass roof, supported by blowers, puffs into place.

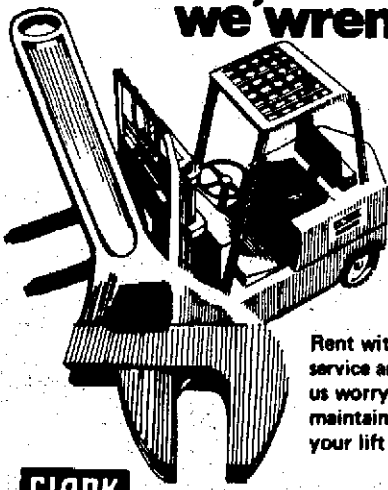

But the stadium won't fill with an estimated 77,500 fans a game without problems. Despite 60 special buses and train service, which is being negotiated, getting to and from the stadium by all evidence will be a trial.

Oakland County Road Commission Fred L. Harris says traffic could literally be backed up for miles because roads leading to the stadium can't handle the anticipated traffic.

It would take another $35 million, the commission estimates, to upgrade the roads to provide a smooth traffic flow. And if money to widen the two lane road leading to the stadium hasn't been let by next week, the road commission says it won't award bids. The county commission has so far refused to allocate the funds.

But Rummel insists the stadium will "manage." Meanwhile, state Sen. John Hertel has asked the state Court of Appeals to halt $800,000 in state aid to the stadium. The Harper Woods Democrat also has introduced legislation seeking the same end. He claims public funds should not be used to benefit the wealthy, such as Lions' owner William Clay Ford.

Surprising Spirits Ready To KO Nets

From THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Nets, the American Basketball Association's defending champions, are on the verge of elimination from the playoffs at the unlikely hands of the Spirits of St. Louis.

"They're playing good ball, we're just playing better," said St. Louis Coach Bob McKinnon after his young club beat New York 106-89 Sunday night to take surprising 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Division semifinal series.

The Spirits finished 20 games below .500 and a whopping 26 games behind New York during the regular season. They lost all 11 regular-season meetings with the Nets and the first game of the playoff series.

But since then, it's been all St. Louis, and the Spirits need only one more victory in the next three games to advance to the division semifinals against the Kentucky Colonels.

Kentucky wrapped up its series with the Memphis Sounds 4-1 Sunday night with a 111-99 victory.

In the Western Division, both Indiana and Denver can capture best-of-seven series with victories tonight. The Pacers take a 3-1 lead into San Antonio against the Spurs and the Nuggets hold the same margin heading into Salt Lake City against the Utah Stars.

The Spirits' surprising turnaround against New York has resulted from their strong work off the boards. St. Louis outrebounded the New Yorkers 63-44 Sunday night, a statistic not lost on Nets' Coach Kevin Loughery.

"I can't believe it. They got about every rebound they wanted," said Loughery. "That last quarter was something. Our defense was playing well but we were giving them second and third shots. You can't give these guys second and third shots."

The Nets held an 87-86 advantage with just over five minutes left when Don Adams sank a free throw and Marvin Barnes hit a pair of shots to put St. Louis on top for good. Julius Erving brought the Nets to within 81-80, but the Spirits ran off the final nine points of the game.

Barnes finished with 23 points and 20 rebounds while teammate Maurice Lucas had 20 points and 18 rebounds. Erving led the Nets with 35 points. The series continues Tuesday night in New York.

Artis Gilmore poured in 31 points to lead Kentucky past Memphis. The Colonels built a 17-point lead after three quarters and held off a mild Sounds' rally in the late going.

Louie Dampier added 21 points and Ted McClain had 20

Opening Games In Benton Harbor Special Olympics Tuesday

Some 400 athletes will take part in the Special Olympics during the next several weeks in southwestern Michigan.

These games for mentally retarded children and adults will be held at the local level in five communities throughout area 17.

Area 17 covers Berrien, Van Buren and Cass counties. Sites for local meets are Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, South Haven, Niles and Edwardsburg.

The first one will be staged at Filstrup field in Benton Harbor on Tuesday. Benton Harbor mayor pro tem Virgil May will take part in the opening ceremonies starting at 10 a.m.

Special Olympics provide competition in track and field, swimming, gymnastics, volleyball, basketball, floor hockey and bowling. Contestants are divided into age groups which are further broken down into four divisions depending on ability. Medals and ribbons are awarded throughout the competition.

Winners at the local meets will take part in the area 17 meet May 2-3 at Dickinson stadium in St. Joe. The bowling and swimming events of that meet will be held May 2, with track and field events coming off May 3.

Winners at the area meet advance to the state meet in Mt. Pleasant June 5-6-7. Last year, that event drew around 2,000 participants. Area 17 finished the competition with 15 gold medal winners, 10 of whom came from Berrien county.

Every four years, the Special Olympics hold an international meet. Mt. Pleasant will host it this year in August. There have been two previous international games — one at Los Angeles, the other in Chicago.

The schedule for other local meets has St. Joseph holding its meet at Dickinson stadium April 22 for track and field events. The swimming portion will be held April 23 and will also include the Benton Harbor swim entries.

The South Haven meet is slated for April 24 at Bateliff field, while the Niles event will come off April 26 at the Niles high school field. The meet for Cass county Olympic hopefuls will take place in Edwardsburg

April 26 at the high school.

The Twin City Rotary Club is sponsoring the two meets here, with assistance from the local Civitan Club and the Berrien Springs Jaycees.

Besides the 400 athletes taking part in the area 17 games, 125 volunteers plus 75 teachers will be on hand to run the meet.

Niles will field the first basketball team ever from southwestern Michigan. Because there are no other cage squads in area 17, Niles will advance to the state meet.

Local Stations Carrying Tigers

Radio stations WHFB and WIRX-FM again are cooperating to broadcast all Detroit Tiger baseball games this season.

All Tiger day games will be broadcast over WHFB (1060) while two-night and night games will be carried over WIRX-FM (107.1).

Tiger fans can check the daily radio log in this newspaper.

By Associated Press Today is Monday April 14, the 104th day of 1975. There are 261 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth at Ford's Theater in Washington. Lincoln died the next morning.

On this date — In 1775, Philadelphia Quakers under Benjamin Franklin organized the first society for the abolition of slavery.

In 1890, delegates to the Washington conference of American states created what was to become the Pan American Union.

In 1912, the ocean liner, "Titanic," struck an iceberg in the North Atlantic shortly before midnight. The ship sank two and one-half hours later, with the loss of more than 1,500 lives.

In 1931, King Alfonso of Spain went into exile, and the Spanish Republic was proclaimed.

In 1945, in the Pacific war, U.S. B-29 bombers pounded Tokyo and the Japanese imperial palace.

Ten years ago: British Prime Minister Harold Wilson began a visit to the United States. The emphasis in talks with President Lyndon Johnson was on Britain's economic problems.

Five years ago: The Apollo 13 spacecraft headed back to earth after a moon mission that had been aborted because of mechanical problems.

One year ago: The first U.S. communications satellite, Westar I, was launched.

Today's birthdays: Actress Julie Christie is 34. Actor Rod Steiger is 50.

Thought for today: no matter how much cats fight, there always seems to be plenty of kittens — Abraham Lincoln.

Maybe I haven't read the papers closely enough, but I can not recall once in the last quarter of a century reading a headline: "Seven West Germans Shot Trying to Escape to East," or, "Hong Kong Police Capture Five Attempting Swim to Red China." On the contrary, movement has invariably been in the other direction: Is there any greater monument to the appeal of freedom than the Berlin Wall? It is therefore hardly a coincidence that the flow of refugees in both Cambodia and the Republic of Vietnam has been away from the Communists. In Vietnam this is a rerun of events after the Geneva agreement of 1954 which provided for "regrouping." Communists in the South were to be allowed to move North and anti-Communists in the North to go South.

When the swap began, less than 100,000 southerners headed for the worker's state, while almost a million left the North before Hanoi, in embarrassment, illegally forbade further emigration. Still the determined ones slipped out, climbing aboard just about anything that would float, and — as always — were pursued by men with guns. As one now sees the pictures of those poor people thronging the roads to Saigon, perhaps he should put aside the stereotype of the "corrupt Saigon dictatorship," and ask, "What do they know that I don't?"

A number of commentators have been taking elaborate evasive action to avoid this moment of truth. One account had it that the reason peasant families fled was simple mob hysteria — they saw everyone doing it. Try that on your piccolo. Then, a more sophisticated version appeared: The people left to avoid the fighting. There is a certain plausibility about this, but it fails to answer the key question: Why didn't they go North and join their liberators? Back to the drawing board.

What do they, and the North Korean prisoners of war in South Korea back in 1953, and the Chinese Communist prisoners of war in the same year, and the Tibetans who fled to Nepal, and the East Germans who still try to penetrate the border minefield or scale the wall, or the Czechs who managed to get out in 1968, or, or... what do these simple folk know that is hidden from many of the great minds of our time? I'll tell you what they know: They know that a Communist government is a barbarian regime.

And they are capable of making the crucial distinction between black and grey; that is, they much prefer an inefficient authoritarian state to efficient totalitarianism.

There is a story which vividly makes this point. Pre-World War II Yugoslavia was hardly a nation dedicated to the Bill of Rights: Its secret police were a rough lot and its prisons were below average in comfort. About 1936, in one of these prisons, a leading Communist was politely handed a newspaper by a guard who usually belted him a couple of times just for exercise. The guard was chuckling because the paper carried word that leading Yugoslav Communist exiles had been shot in Moscow shortly after confessing to working for French-Japanese-British intelligence. As the shocked prisoner absorbed the details, the guard said: "Now aren't you lucky? The best day of your life was when we started protecting you."

To say this is in no sense to justify any variety of authoritarianism: it is merely to emphasize that in this world one rarely has a nice clear choice between black and white. A civil liberties lawyer in Boston can issue a quite valid attack on some of the Saigon government's actions, but the issues he raises are irrelevant to the Kon Tum peasant fleeing from effective barbarism.

To use language this strong is to invite dismissal from the club of gentlemen journalists as a cold war relic, but sometimes the only way to put the truth is crudely. Communist regimes are barbaric. If anyone refuses to believe this (and is prepared to look at the evidence), I suggest he go to his friendly neighborhood bookseller and purchase, in paperback, Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn's "The Gulag Archipelago."

Judge Delays New Beef Grade Rules

By JOHN M. WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — New federal beef grading standards vigorously opposed by consumer groups and some meat packers won't take effect today as scheduled.

Judge Donald T. Lay of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused on Sunday to overturn a district court ruling halting implementation of the standards. He did schedule a hearing for Tuesday to consider a request by government attorneys to lift the injunction. Lay granted the hearing after a meeting in his living room in Omaha Sunday night. He said it would be held before a two- or three-judge panel of the court in either Omaha or St. Louis. The preliminary injunction was issued Friday afternoon by U.S. District Court Judge Robert V. Denney. Denney said the ruling "has the effect" of delaying implementation of the new standards nationwide and Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz agreed. Denney acted on a request by the Independent Meat Packers Association of Omaha. Essentially the new standards would lower the amount of fat required for beef to be graded "choice" by USDA meat inspectors. The amount of fat, or marbling, determines the tenderness of the meat. The more marbling, the more tender the meat. Feeding cattle grain increases the amount of marbling. That means that lowering the required amount of marbling would allow cattle to be fed less expensively with more grass and less grain, while maintaining the choice classification.

Opponents say this would mean consumers would be paying choice prices for meat of lower quality than they are now receiving. The USDA replies that the changes won't be noticeable to consumers.

Another facet of the new regulations would require that all beef graded for quality also be graded for yield — indicating the percentage of retail-trimmed meat in the beef. The grading program now costs meat packers about $14.00 an hour. These costs, which are passed on to the consumer, will increase if federal agents have to take longer to grade for both quality and yield, packer experts say.

Hang Glider Accident Injures Man

BRIDGMAN — A 20-year-old Grays Lake, Ill., man was injured in a hang glider accident at the Warren Dunes state park, near here yesterday afternoon, according to the Weesaw township fire department.

Listed in serious condition this morning at Memorial hospital, St. Joseph, with back injuries was Duane Rudman. A hospital spokesman said he was being treated in the intensive care unit.

Craig Smith, Weesaw township fire chief, said park authorities reported Rudman was injured after a fall while piloting the glider. Smith said ambulance attendants reported the man said he had no feelings from the waist down. It was the second such accident involving a hang glider in the park in slightly over a month. On March 3, the Weesaw township ambulance was called when a 19-year-old Lombard, Ill., man received a broken back when his glider was blown into a tree by high winds.

State police from South Haven said Banks was pinned between two cars when one of the cars leaped forward as he was working on the motor.

Troopers said Banks was putting gasoline into the carburetor when the car lunged forward, pinning him against the other stopped car.

The accident occurred on M-140 near 16th avenue. Police said Banks was assisting his brother-in-law, Matthew Phillips when the accident occurred. Phillips' car, officers said, had run out of gas earlier.

Banks was reported in satisfactory condition today in the hospital.

Explosion Rocks

African Plant

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A huge explosion has rocked a plant producing oil from coal at Sasiburg, 40 miles from Johannesburg.

"It is such an inferno that the firemen can't get close enough to discover if there is anybody in there," an eyewitness reported.

"My first thought was, 'Oh God, the whole of Sasiburg has gone up.' It sounded like an earthquake."

Fire engines from all parts of the area were rushed to the plant, which was operated by a government corporation. The plant produced about 5 per cent of the refined oils South Africa required.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Advance Broadly

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced broadly today, riding the momentum of last week's strong gain.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up a fraction, and gainers took a 2-1 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said it appeared last week's resurgence of buying had convinced some investors that the rally which carried the market to an eight-month high at Friday's close had further to go.

In the economic news, the government reported that business inventories dropped a record $1.49 billion in February, with the bulk of the decline coming in the auto industry under programs of rebates to car buyers.

The Commerce Department, which had originally reported an inventory reduction for January, revised that month's figures to show a $5 million increase.

Stocks had shown a strong favorable response to the original January figures because they appeared to show that the distribution system was being effectively cleared out to open the way for resumed production.

Today's prices included Holiday Inns, up 1/4 at 11 1/4; EG&G, up 1/4 at 14 1/4; International Telephone & Telegraph, 1/4 higher at 20, and Cliticorp, ahead 1/4 at 35 1/4.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average finished up its biggest weekly gain in six months with an 8.21 advance to 789.50.

The Dow's 42.24 rise for the week was its biggest since it set a record with a 73.61 jump the week ending Oct. 11 last year.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about an 8-5 margin in turnover of 20.16 million shares on the NYSE.

The Big Board's composite index was up .25 at 44.61.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed .52 to 81.24.

TWIN HEART PATIENT
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Ivan Taylor, 58, the world's first twin heart patient has died, the Johannesburg Sunday Express reports. Taylor had a second heart implanted by Dr. Christian Barnard in Cape Town last November. It was the first time such an operation had been attempted.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Municipal Bonds: How Safe Are They?

By SAM SHULSKY
Q. How safe are municipal bonds? For example, what happened to them during previous recessions?

A. A recent bond letter from Leibel & Co., leading dealers in the tax-exempt market, declares that a tax-free general obligation bond is second only to U.S. Government bonds as far as payment of interest and principal is concerned. Reason: "They are backed by unlimited taxes on real estate and by any other tax a city levies. Under the constitution of the State of New York (for example) real estate taxes must be pegged at whatever rate it takes to pay off the bonds. Paying bondholders has priority over all other municipal obligations."

"During the Great Depression," the letter says, "the largest amount of both interest and principal that was a month or more late at any one time, anywhere in the country, was $200 million, or 1.7 per cent of the debt outstanding. In virtually every case, bondholders ultimately received payment in full. Total loss came to less than 1/2 of 1 per cent."

I'm happy to offer this expert historical review, but want to stress the importance of the term "general obligation"; that is, a bond backed by the full faith and credit, and taxing power, of the issuing government. If you go off into "revenue" bonds which are services (both interest and principal) by revenues from the specific project (toll road, transit system, etc.) for which they were issued or if you go into "industrial" type municipals, bonds issued, for example, to build a factory which a town or city then leases to a private company, then you had better make certain that the project has a good chance of succeeding — at least to the point of servicing the bonds.

TIRED OF MARKET

Q. I am tired of the stock market and would be just as well satisfied with an income from bonds; that is, if there are any around in which one can invest and not worry about the capital becoming less as time goes by.

So this fall I plan on selling the stock, picking up the bonds and then skip reading the financial page.

A. With the tenor of financial news in recent years has been the goal many have devoutly wished for. You give me very little personal data to go on, but if you are retired and interested mainly in generous and safe income, there is a lot to be said for the high grade bond route. There are always bonds around — either new issues or those already outstanding.

However, none can offer you any hedge against inflation. If you invest for 8 1/2 to 9 per cent now, you must count on that income meeting your living expenses from now on.

Mr. Shulsky welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Increased Unemployed Pay Sought

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union has launched what it calls the most vigorous lobbying campaign in its history for changes in the state's unemployment compensation laws.

The move comes at a time when Supplemental Unemployment Benefits (SUB) either are exhausted or are due to expire at the end of this month for almost 100,000 of the UAW's members in Michigan.

A UAW spokesman said the union's ultimate goal is to assure an unemployed worker two-thirds of his or her weekly wage in state jobless benefits.

UAW vice president Doug Fraser, the director of the union's political arm, the Community Action Program, indicated, however, he will settle for legislation providing a minimum of 55 per cent.

Fraser contends the maximum allowable benefits under present Michigan law are $106 for a worker with four dependents and $67 for a single person and that these are too low.

"The benefit level is woefully inadequate and Michigan ranks lowest in that regard among 10 industrialized states," Fraser said.

Fraser contended that while Michigan has the highest weekly earnings of the 10 industrial states at $248, the ceiling on benefits paid by employers results in a laid off Michigan worker getting from 27 to 42 per cent of his average earnings.

He said a worker in Connecticut can get up to 83.2 per cent of his average earnings in unemployment compensation, a Pennsylvania worker up to 64.7 per cent and an Ohio worker up to 54.9 per cent.

The UAW leader said the union is concentrating its efforts at the state level now, although it is hopeful that eventually the federal government will take over all unemployment legislation.

Fraser and William C. Marshall, president of the Michigan AFL-CIO, met last week to plan their strategy in seeking increased benefits for laid off workers.

"I anticipate the Legislature, particularly the Democratic majority in both houses, will do something in the immediate future," Fraser said.

A Consensus: Economy Recovering In Late 1975

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Seldom has there been such a solid consensus on the future of the economy as the one that now exists. Almost all forecasters see the likelihood or the probability of a recovery later this year.

Two more important forecasts were added over the weekend, by the First National City Bank and the Conference Board, a nonprofit research and education organization supported mainly by business.

The Conference Board couldn't have been more clear in announcing its outlook. It proclaimed: "With the expected stimulation a tax cut will provide, the odds are now nearly 100 per cent for a recovery in the final quarter."

Even before the tax cut, the board's economists felt that several factors were combining to tilt the odds in favor of recovery: declining rates of inflation, liquidation of inventories, lower cost and more plentiful credit.

Stanley Reber, director of business analysis for the board, notes that wholesale prices fell at an annual rate of 6.2 per cent in the three months ending with February, compared with a 35 per cent jump in the July-September period. Reber believes that inflation likely will remain above 5 per cent, "for evermore."

But he adds that the recent monthly figures on wholesale and retail prices support the conclusion that double-digit inflation is dead.

The reduction in the heavy backlog of inventories, largely built up in the latter part of 1974, isn't likely to be as pronounced as the drop in the inflation rate, although Reber looks for a period of stability.

Manufacturers' inventories continued to rise in January, but the increase amounted to only $3 billion compared with $27 billion worth that accumulated in December. A balance between sales and inventories might not be achieved until early 1976, he believes, but the dangerous buildup appears to be over.

The Conference Board cites the five-month decline in the prime interest rate to less than 8 per cent from more than 12 per cent as the reason to be optimistic about the future economy.

"Sufficient liquidity now exists in the U.S. financial markets to allow a recovery to get under way whenever underlying real economic conditions warrant," the report states, adding:

"The acid test for Federal Reserve policy will not occur until late in 1975, when it will be asked to sit back and allow the money supply to rise at nearly double-digit rates for a quarter or two as the recovery picks up."

Citibank, while citing some of the same reasons for its optimism, hedged a bit in comparison with the 100 per cent certainty of the Conference Board.

"A recovery is in the making for late 1975," it said, but added that "this recovery, like its predecessors, may be marred by some disappointing although short-lived setbacks."

Its economists do not fear, as many economists do, that the impact of heavy Treasury borrowing will serve to exclude private borrowers from the credit markets in 1975.

It cites as one reason for its optimism that "The counterpart of unusually heavy Treasury borrowing ... is likely to be an unusually large decline in the borrowings of households and businesses."

But it continues, "The judgement concerning the current calendar year does not necessarily hold for the longer run." As the economy recovers from the recession in 1976 and beyond, private demand for credit likely will grow.

As the economy nears full employment in 1977 or 1978, "the monetary authorities will face a painful dilemma unless the federal deficit and related Treasury borrowing diminish sufficiently."

At that time, First City points out, private borrowers will be back in the market, and the Federal Reserve will be faced with this dilemma:

"Either allow Treasury borrowing to crowd out private borrowers to an extent that stifles private capital formation or permit the money supply to grow at an inflationary rate."

1975'S 'FIRECRACKER' TAX LAW

Ever since Mar. 29 when, before a nationwide TV audience, President Ford signed into law the biggest tax cut in history, the headlines have been mostly about the juicy 1974 tax rebates and 1975 tax reductions all of us are to get. But this law goes way beyond its widely heralded tax cuts.

In fact, the least publicized tax bonanzas that Congress slipped into the bill may work in tandem to give you tax-savings possibilities far greater than you may imagine.

Of even more fundamental significance to your job, paycheck and profits is the probability that with the stimulus the economy is to get from the tax breaks plus Congress's spending programs plus the Federal Reserve's major easing of credit, the longest and deepest business slump of the post-World War II era will soon reach a turning point.

The bottom of the 1973-75 slump may be only a couple months away.

More and more, the question is now when the downturn will end but in what shape. Will the economy drag along in the shape of an "L"? Or will it gradually recover in the shape of a "saucer"? Or will the stimulus send us into a sharp "V" shaped upturn?

To summarize the major highlights of this law:

(1) If you are in the market for a newly constructed house, you will be eligible for an unprecedented tax credit equal to 5 per cent of the purchase price — up to $2,000. And your new home can be a single-family, condominium, co-op or mobile home.

(2) If you are a homeowner, you'll get six additional months in which to replace a home sold at a gain with a new home and to defer your tax on the gain. The new time limits are 18 months if your new home is an existing house, two years if it's newly built.

Many breaks are "coming together to create one of the hottest homebuying climates ever," says Prentice-Hall in a privately-circulated letter. "Put them all together and they spell out the biggest home-selling, profit-boosting opportunity that's come along in real estate in years!"

(3) If you are among America's millions of working couples with minor children and if your combined income to $4,800 for child-care expenses. And you don't lose your entire child-care deduction until your combined income reaches a lofty $44,000. What a break this will be!

(4) If you use the standard deduction and low income allowance, heed this. The percentage standard deduction is rising to 16 per cent of your adjusted gross income to a maximum of $2,600 if you are married filing jointly or are a surviving spouse; to $2,300 if you are a single taxpayer; to $1,300 if you are married filing separately. Your low income allowance for 1975 is going up $600 to $1,900 if you are married taxpayers filing jointly; up $300 to $1,600 if you are an unmarried taxpayer; up $300 to $950 if you are married filing separately. The biggest savings are going to you if you file joint returns.

(5) If you are a small businessman, you're to get a one-shot break via a corporate tax reduction to 20 per cent on your first $25,000 of income and a cut to 22 per cent on your next $25,000. The result is a 40 per cent tax slash on the first $50,000 of earnings.

(6) If you acquire and place in service qualified property after Jan. 21, 1975, and before Jan. 1, 1977, you're now entitled to a new high investment credit of 10 per cent. That's up from 4 per cent for public utilities and from 7 per cent for others. This two-year investment credit boost makes buying new plant and equipment more attractive than ever before.

(7) Then, there's the publicized tax rebate of 10 per cent on our 1974 income taxes, generally limited to $100 to $200. (8) There's the one-shot $30 credit for each personal exemption we claim in 1975. But there are no extra credits for additional exemptions of taxpayers over 65 or blind.

(9) There's the special $50 payment going to the millions getting benefits under Social Security or the Railroad Retirement Act or Supplementary Security Income.

(10) There's the extension of unemployment benefits for another 13 weeks for those who have exhausted their 32 weeks of benefits. The extended benefits are only available for the period ending June 30.

And more, much more. If this tax law had been passed before year-end, it would have been called a "Christmas Tree." In view of its timing, I'll dub it a "Firecracker" — the explosiveness of which should be evident well before July 4.

Whirlpool Transfers Executive

Gene Richards, former director of customer assurance at Whirlpool Corporation's Evansville, Ind., Division, has been named general manager of consumer affairs for Sears Refrigeration.

Guy Turner, director of consumer affairs, said Richards will be transferred to the Corporate Consumer Affairs Division at Whirlpool's at Administration Center Benton Harbor. He replaces Cliff Reuter, who has been assigned to a special project, Turner said.

Richards joined Whirlpool's field service organization in 1953 as a service representative. After serving from 1954 to 1957 as special assistant on quality to Elisha Gray, then-president of the corporation, he was transferred to Evansville, where he worked in several capacities to his present position.

TV Film Brings To Life Sorry Bit Of Americana

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — ABC is televising tonight a somewhat stolid, yet oddly moving dramatization of the last battles of an American Indian tribe fighting to avoid confinement on a federal reservation.

The show's title, "I Will Fight No More Forever," is taken from the anguished words of surrender by Chief Joseph of the Nez Perce to his respected friend and opponent, Gen. Oliver O. Howard, in October 1877.

The words came after the chief's final fight on a Montana field, just 40 miles from Canada and the safety he and his ragged followers sought after repeatedly defeating or fighting to a standstill Army troops which had pursued him over 1,600 miles in an 11-week period.

The beautifully photographed show stars James Whitmore as Howard, a one-armed Civil War veteran who, although he pleaded for the Nez Perce in Washington, D.C., still fought them when ordered by the government.

He turns in a low-key, sympathetic performance, as does Ned Romero, cast as Chief Joseph, a 37-year-old leader of a faction of the Nez Perce tribe which refused to join the others on the reservation.

(A word of warning: The show's dialogue tends to be wooden-Indian, but the battle scenes are realistic and bloody. Parents should eject preteen members of the family from the room when the show is on.)

The proceedings start in Chief Joseph's tribal lands in Oregon's Wallows Valley, where a young Indian man sees his father killed by a white settler who claims the older Indian stole his horses.

Chief Joseph counsels patience and pledges to demand justice for this and other murderous acts when he meets later with Gen. Howard, a man whose word he respects, if not that of official Washington.

The meeting is held, Howard promises to arrest and try the settler, and then reluctantly tells the chief that Washington is ordering the tribe off their land to a reservation.

They've got 30 days to move, to make way for the white settlers coming in. The chief balks at this, and is granted time to discuss it with his leading tribesmen in a private council.

They urge putting up a fight. He urges them to go to the reservation, acknowledging the white man's force now is far mightier than theirs and that to fight would mean useless death.

It becomes academic when white and Indian hotheads start an initial round of killing that leads to full-scale war in which some Indians kill for revenge but most battle only to escape the reservation.

Most of the dialogue assigned the Indians is stiffer than a dead-for-many-moons buffalo, while that of Whitmore and his fellow palefaces at least occasionally sounds convincing.

Despite its pow-wow paucity, the show is a pretty good effort at bringing to life a sorry period in American history. And the scenery is breathtaking, even though the program wasn't filmed in Nez Perce country.

It was filmed in central Mexico, according to ABC. Strange are the ways of the white producer ...
